SENECA SAGA 1981

Volume 85
Geneva High School
Geneva, New York 14456

A new Geneva High

On May 23, 1979, after much debate, the Geneva community elected to start a building program which would include a new high school on school-owned property on Carter Road. Construction on this $7,125,000 project started in August of 1979 with the official groundbreaking on the sixteenth of that month.

In the long run, this new school will save the taxpayers money because, as enrollment decreases, it will require a smaller staff, having four instead of three classes. Other savings from the building program will be gained in maintenance, since the number of elementary schools was consolidated from four to two. This closes old buildings which needed extensive repair and required exorbitant amounts of energy to heat and light.

The new three story high school has updated facilities and equipment to provide a better educational environment. There is room for student independent study and more comprehensive learning centers. The new building has two gyms—one with a regular size basketball court and a smaller one upstairs with a weightroom.

Outdoors, the campus itself provides tremendous facilities for the school's athletic programs. Particularly welcome are the expanded tennis courts.

In addition to better academic and athletic areas, the school is a more pleasant building than the Pulteney Street facility. The cafeteria is open and features a terrace for use in good weather. A student commons area is another asset. This is a spot where students can read or study when they are not in classes.

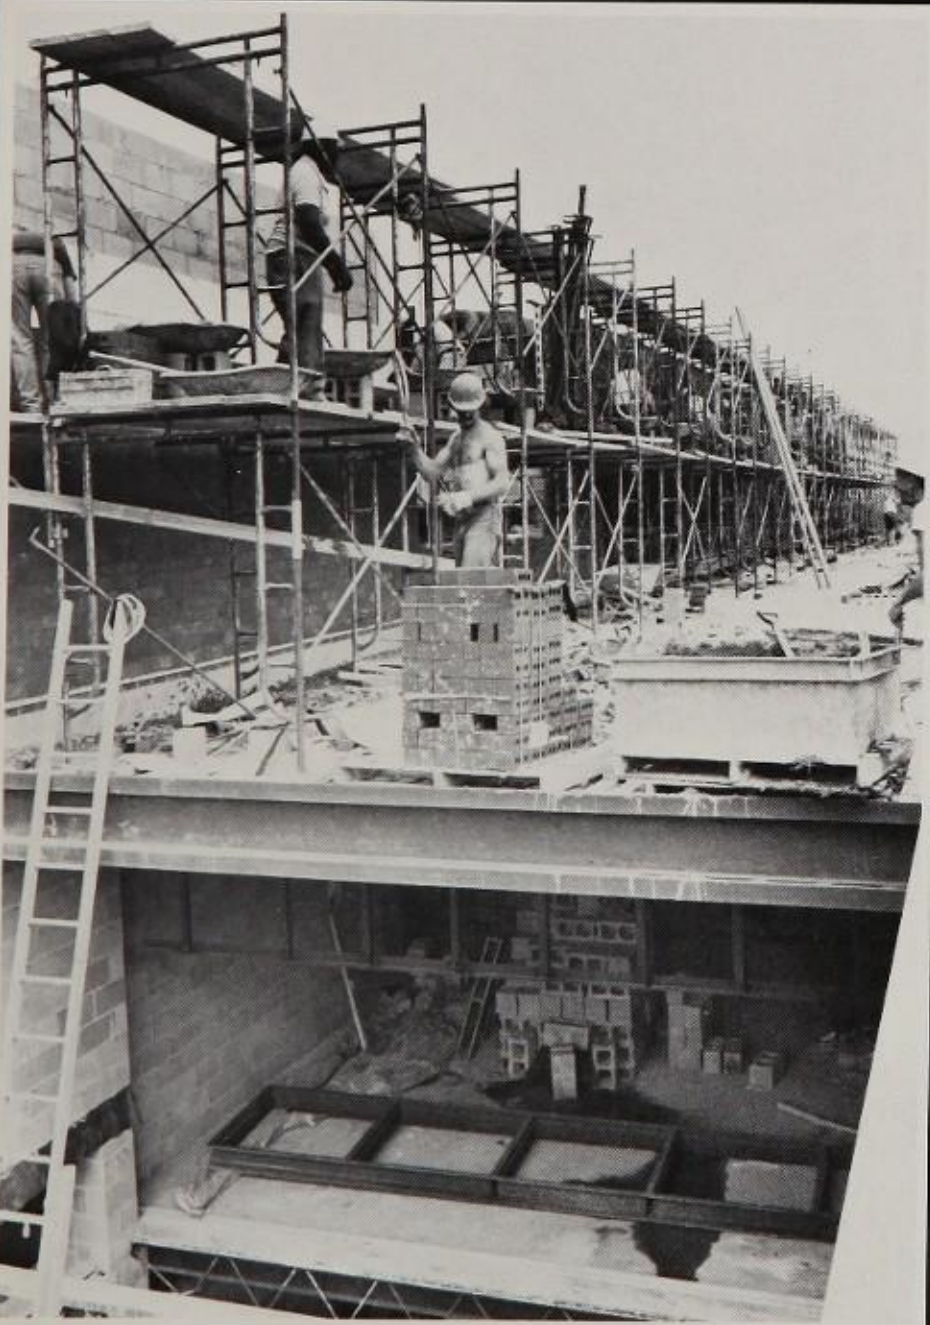

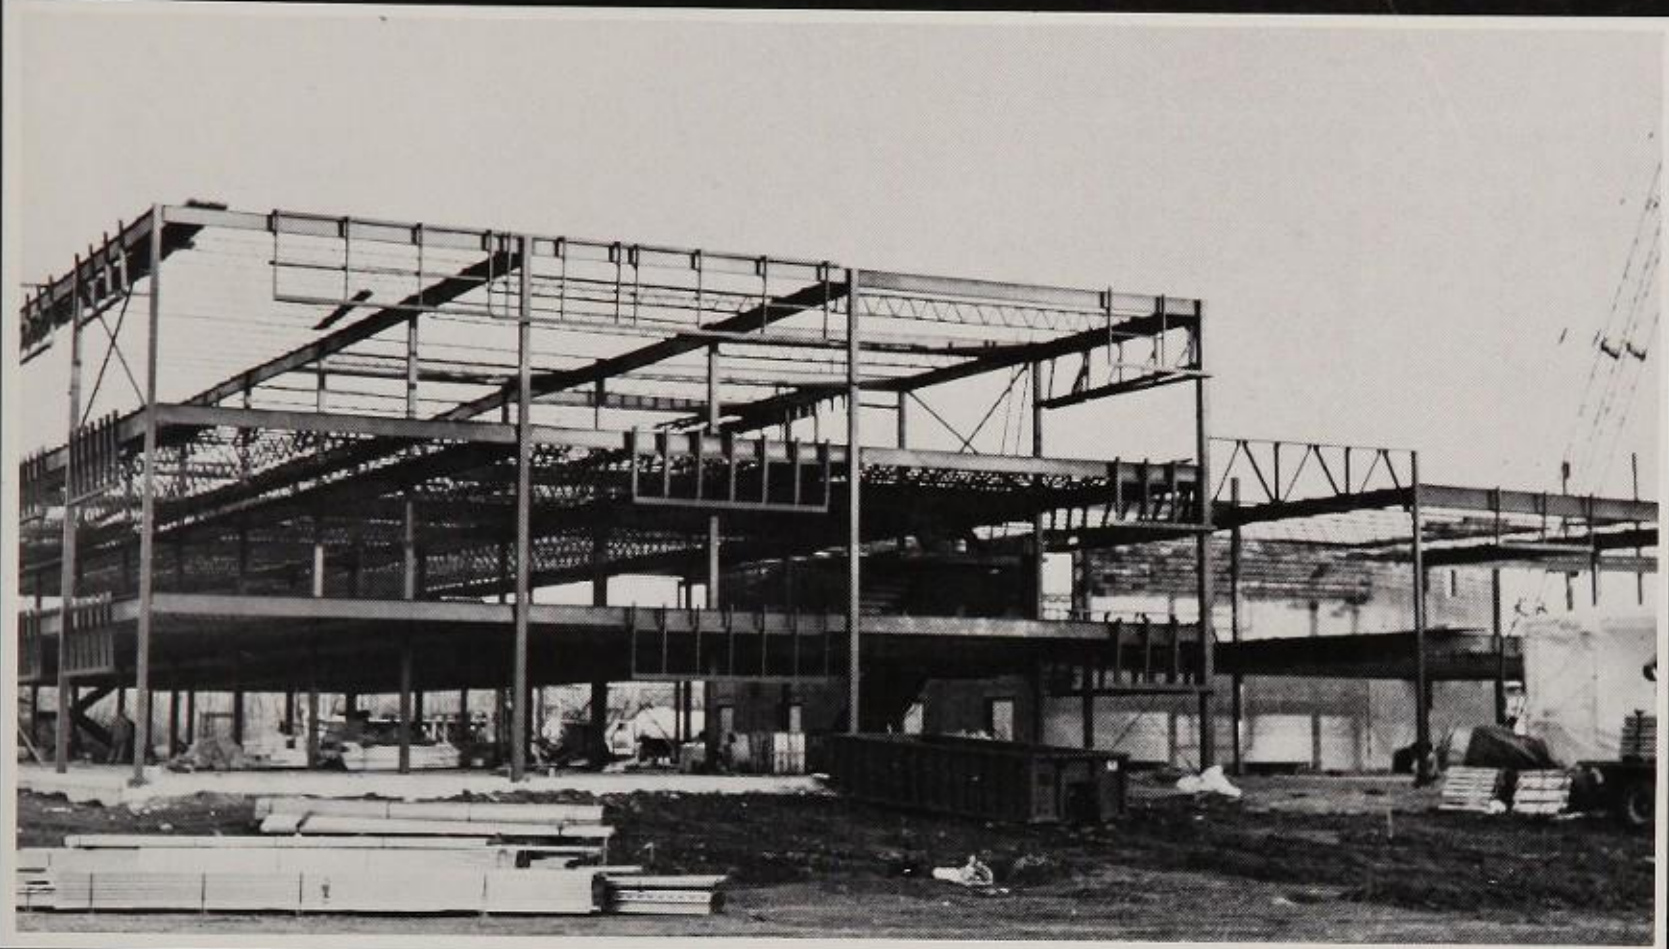

As of February 2, 1981, four classes of Geneva High School students—freshmen through seniors—were housed in the long-awaited new building.

Beth Witte

In the summer of 1979, the site for the new school (above) had been cleared and graded. On August 16, 1979, John D'Amico (right), the Board's chairman of the building program, symbolically started the construction by removing the first shovelful of earth.

Although plagued by the usual problems and delays, construction of the school kept fairly well on schedule. Below is the steel framework of the three-story building.

With Mother Nature's co-operation in providing good weather, workmen (left) laid up the cinderblock walls.

Because it was a material that is both durable and attractive, brick was selected as the material for the school's exterior. Shown above is what eventually became the main entrance, off Carter Road.

(Additional scenes from the new high school are featured on pages 6-9, 60-61, 144, and all divider pages.)

The Move

One local writer called the Geneva School District's move to the new building "a large-scale maneuver". Greater Syracuse Moving and Storage Company of North Syracuse had the $70,500 contract to move the district from seven into four buildings.

The move took around thirteen days during which the crews stayed in Geneva, working fourteen-hour days for the duration. More than thirty movers and six to eight tractor trailers were operating during the peak of the operation. Thousands of articles of furniture and educational materials, all boxed by school staff and faculty members, were shifted between January 15, when the library was moved into its new quarters, and February 1, 1981.

Students helped teachers pack everything from motors to microscopes during their study hall time and after school hours. High school staff came in during the winter recess to start the unpacking in the new building so that classes could resume on February 2nd with as little disruption as possible.

Moving the high school was involved. Mr. Chapman (top center) had to label hundreds of pieces of equipment from his shop.

Mrs. Braun (above) was on tap to supervise the packing and moving of sensitive, fragile, expensive apparatus used in biology.

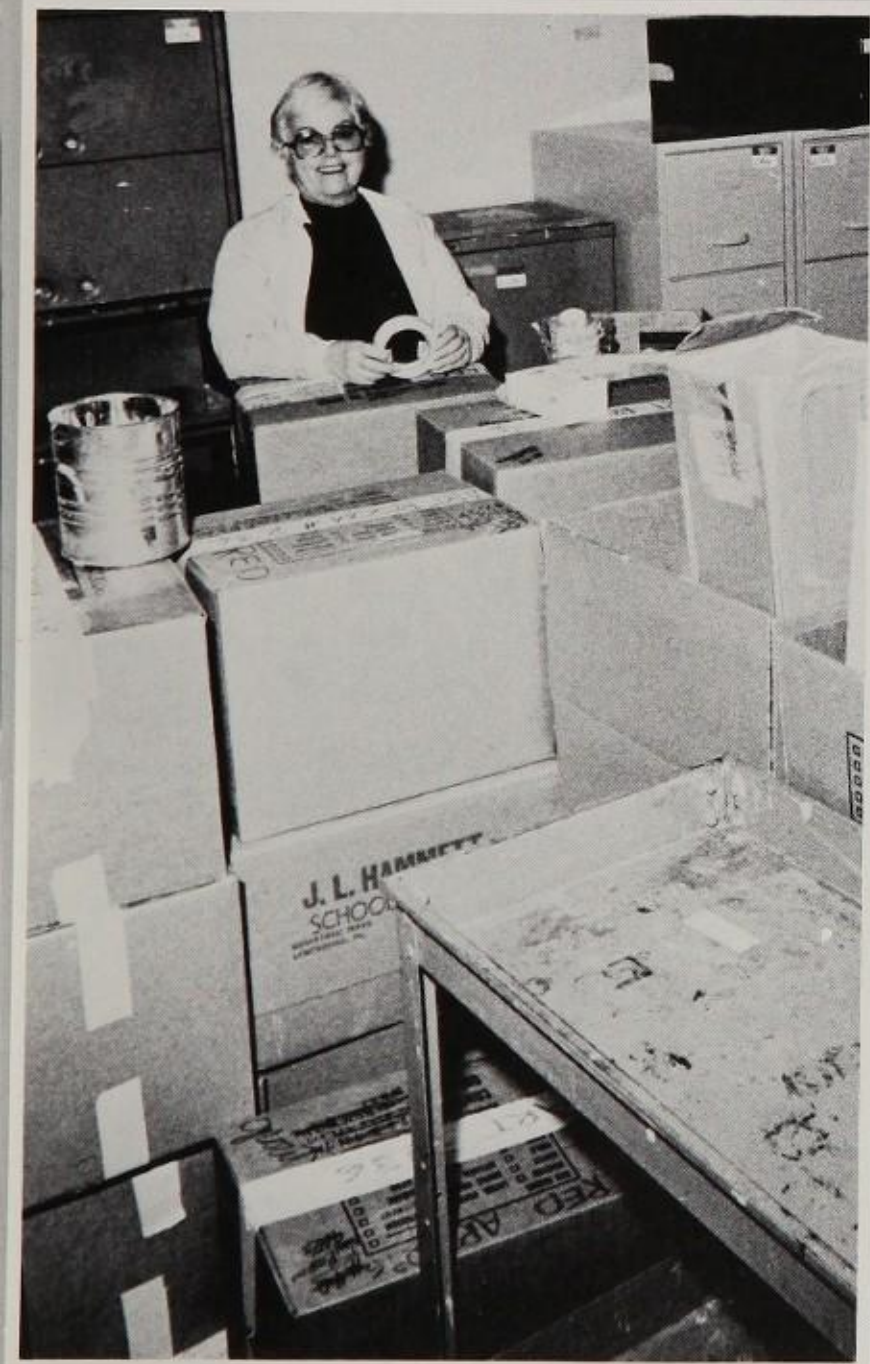

Teachers (see Mr. Ninestine in the center and Mrs. Johnson, facing page) taught their classes around, above, and behind boxes of materials that had to be ready by Thursday of Regents week.

Exhaustion was the key word to describe the week of the move. The men (right) take a break from all the hectic activity.

Waving good-bye from the men's faculty room in the old GHS, J.G. and Mr. Tepper were ready to move before the van arrived.

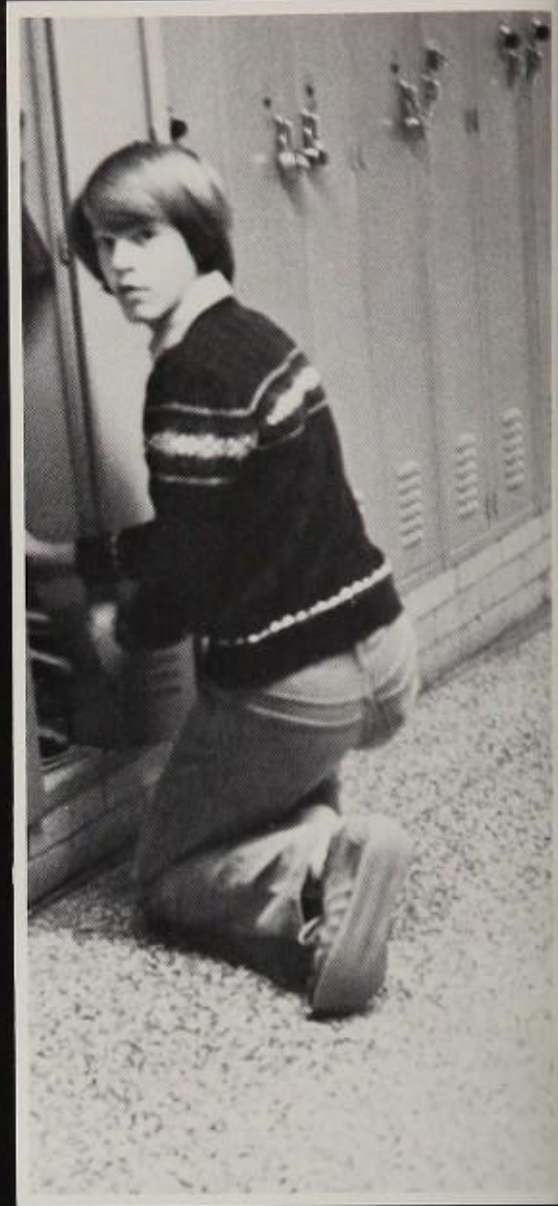

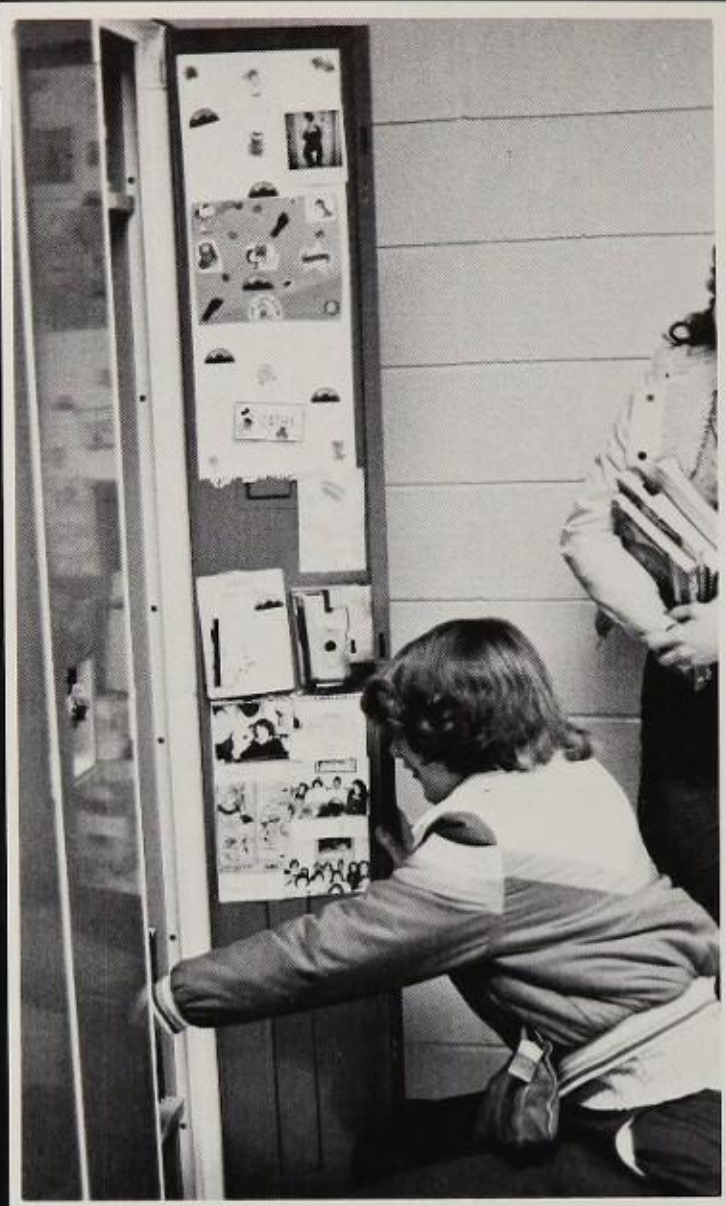

During a snowy week, the movers unloaded desks, files, cabinets, and hundreds of boxes of books at the new school.

Mrs. Briskey and Mrs. Linkner (left) teamed up to unpack and arrange the library in the new high school's IMC.

NEW SURROUNDINGS

The majority of the student body named the bright-colored lockers as the best feature of the new school. The lockers — red or maroon on the first floor; orange or yellow on the second; and blue or green on the third level — are color-keyed to the graphic stripes that relieve the beige walls of the halls and the accent walls in most classrooms. Another feature of the new building that earned nearly everyone's endorsement is the wide open cafeteria. The biggest disadvantage, according to the students polled, is the appearance of the outside of the school; they feel it looks like a prison.

It still seems, though, that everyone has different ideas of their likes and dislikes of the new Geneva High School. Rick Hovey remarked, "It's ugly outside, but I can handle it inside." Junior Karen Minns likes the openness and the new waste baskets while Liz Payne thinks the new gym is "just great."

Sophomore Bob Salotti said, "The food in this new school is better than in the old school." "The change of atmosphere is great," remarked Lisa Huie, but someone else said, "It looks like a shopping mall rather than a school."

Vikki John thinks the brighter rooms are great and added, "At least I don't fall asleep in class as much as I did in the old dull, other school."

Senior Lisa Ballistreri sums it all up: "It's very new and ultra-modern; it's great!"

The open staircase in the Carter Road building (below left) is as good a place for people-watching as was the second floor landing in the Pulteney Street facility (right).

The new lunchroom (center left) with a view of the outdoors, now has smaller round and square tables instead of the standard institutional ones in the basement cafeteria of the old GHS (center right). Even the parking lot at the new school (left) is an improvement over the old one (right).

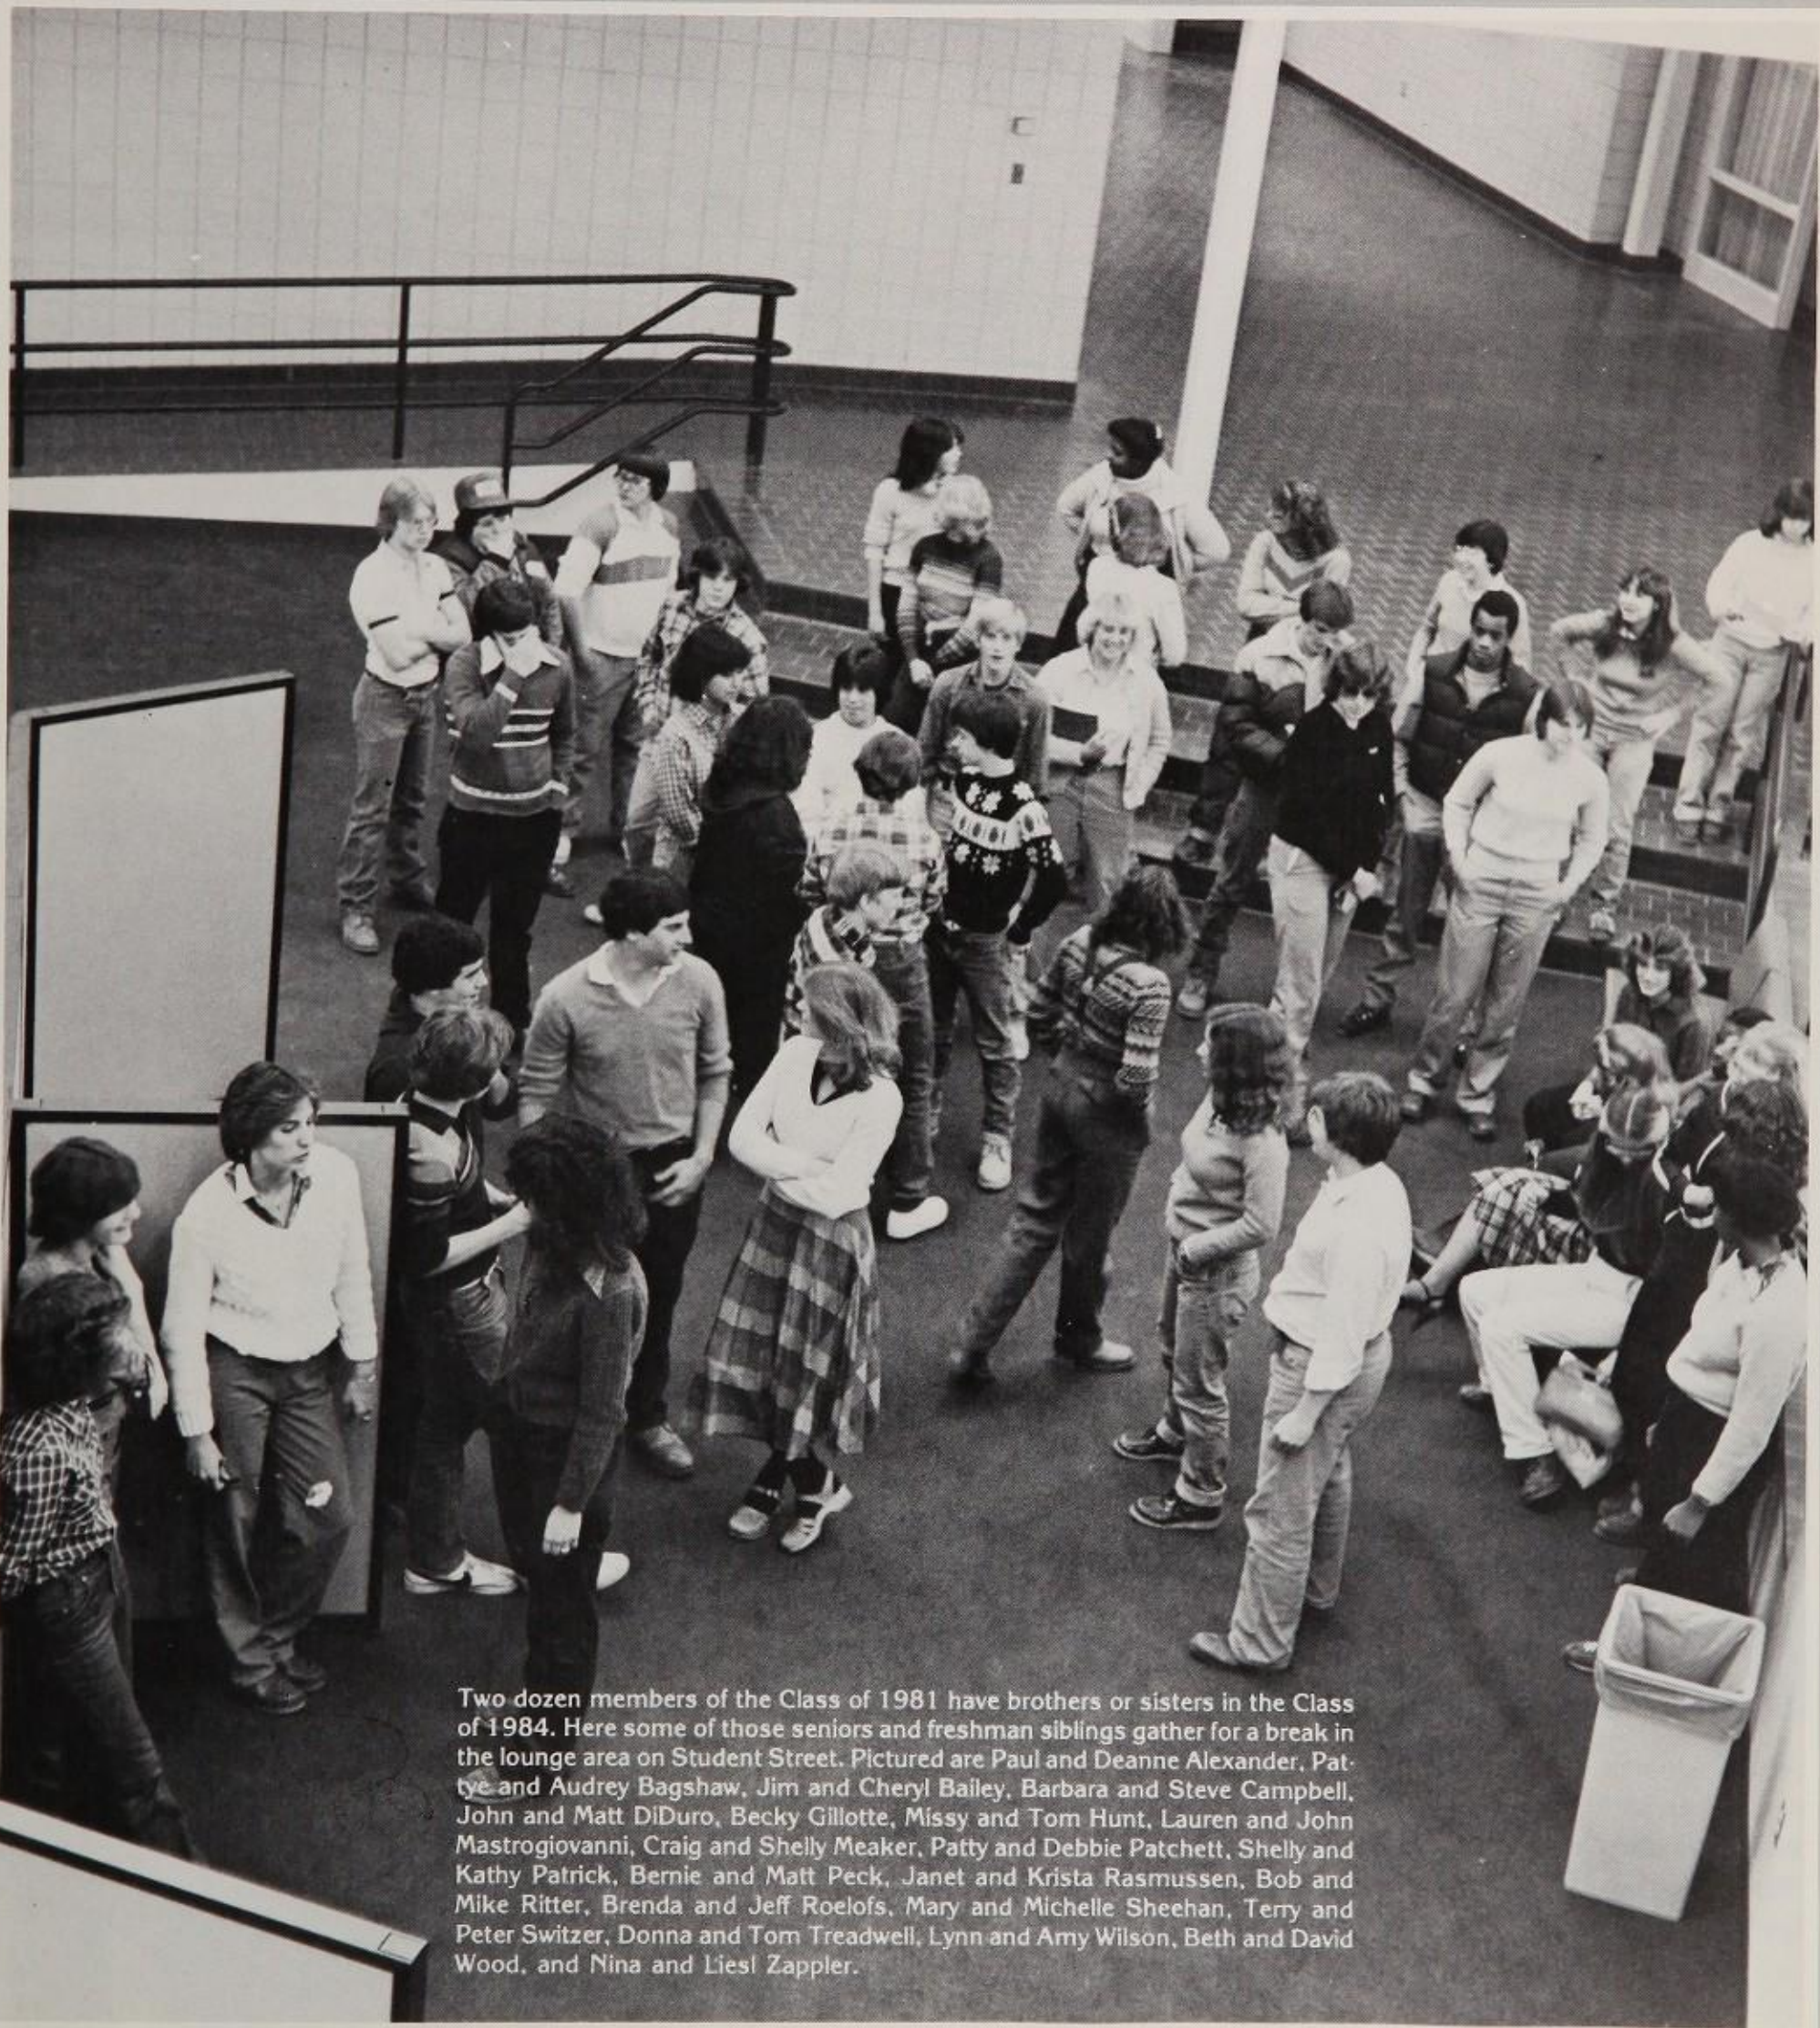

While she was on a tour of the new Geneva High School, senior Julie Pollino (right) tested the open stairway that is at the end of Student Street.

The lobby on the side of Student Street is an addition to the school that many students enjoy as shown by some of the freshmen (below).

Most GHS'ers (lower right) are pleased with the openness of the great new main hall.

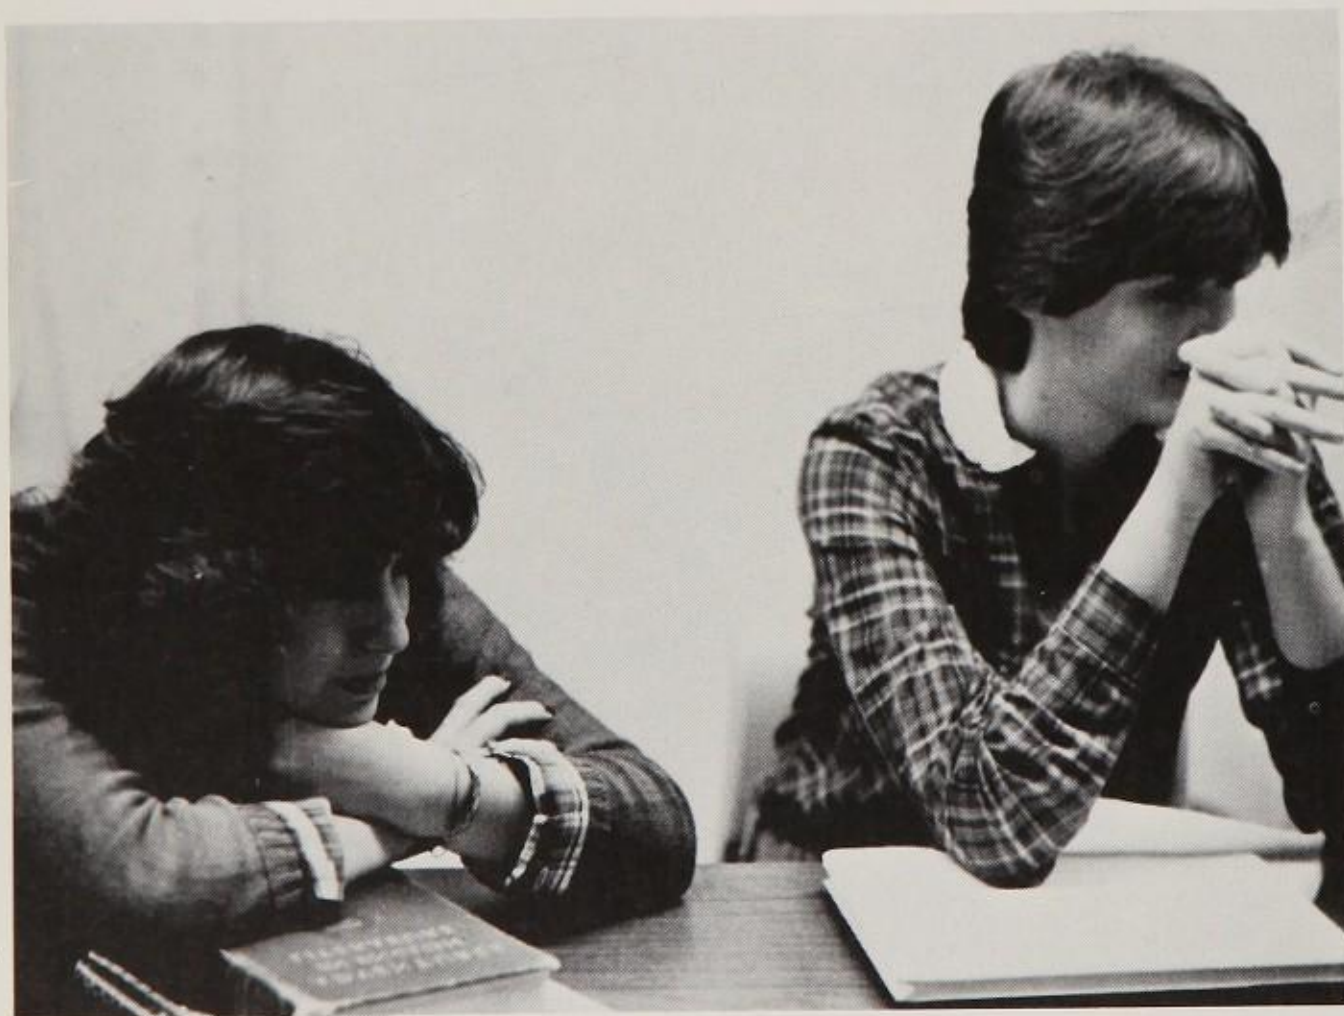

Student Street

F E E L I N G S

Morris Albert's hit song says "... nothing more than feelings." But around GHS, feelings are very visible. For instance, Mr. Ninestine (top) feels quite cautious about his donkey's habits. Mary McFadden and Karen Felice (above) seem to feel pensive because they are in class while Bob DiDuro and Louie Hall (right) are feeling pretty glum about a football practice.

Exuberant describes Dana Downer's feelings after her team has scored.

While Julie Fab, Sue Cos, and Shari Smith (left) feel too shy to look at the camera, Sue Sclarabba proves she is not!

Cathy Powers (above) expresses her delight at being a part of the successful play The Sound of Music.

Break-in-the-routine

Since everyone works hard during classes, when a break-in-the-routine comes around, it is really utilized.

Welcome breaks come in the form of assemblies during class time, A BOCES informational talk, or Variety Week activities from 2:30 to 3:05. Pep rallies, the five minutes between classes, lunch period, or a few minutes on the terrace or at the back entrance catching the rays are also pleasant interruptions in the daily grind of lectures and homework.

Whatever form their breaks take, GHS students enjoy them to the fullest.

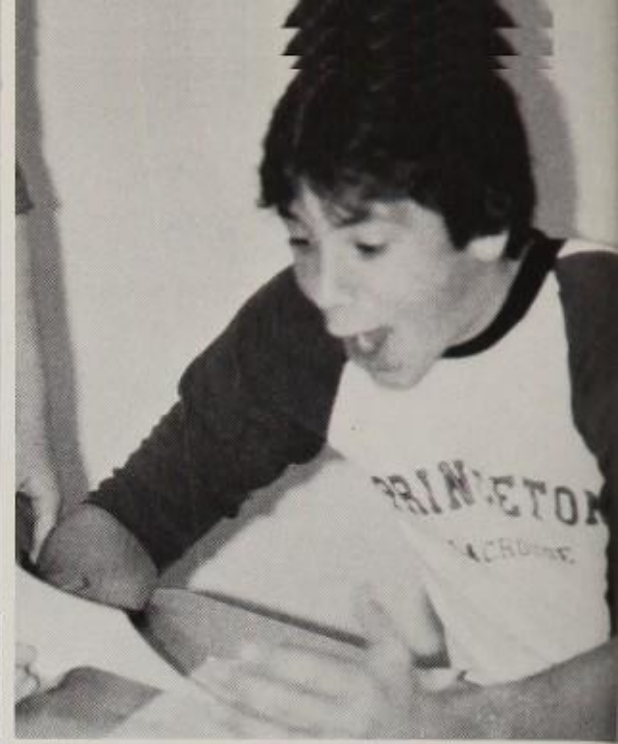

When the Student Council sponsored a concert as fund-raiser, Marty Thibault (top) took a break from homeroom and first period to help set up the audio equipment. The whole school, above, enjoyed the mini-Free Fare concert in the gym of the old school.

Many of the girls enjoyed their break from the regular Phys Ed class when a local business demonstrated hair-dressing and make-up techniques. Hope Lind (top) and friends marvel at Michele Simeone's new look.

Break

When the first report card day rolled around, Jim Shields (top) took a break to admire the results of ten weeks of hard work.

The sophomores (middle) use their spare time to get rowdy at a pep rally while Ed Barber (right) uses his to satisfy his sweet tooth.

Shooting the breeze in the halls is how many GHS'ers such as Cindy Powers and Bob Avery (above) spend their break time.

Homecoming 1980

The eighth annual GHS Homecoming honored past officers of the respective classes. The theme, fitting our school's symbol, was "The Year of the Cat." Panthers could be found everywhere — in the halls, on the floats, and especially, on the field where Geneva won the football game against Victor, 15-6.

The entire Homecoming Week was filled with activities organized to build excitement among the students. At 2:35 each day, members of all four classes participated in kooky contests such as wheelbarrow and skateboard races and a pie-eating contest, the object of which was to find the marshmallow hidden in whip cream!

At week's end, the classes' scores for their participation and enthusiasm saw the sophomores, who won the hall competition, taking overall first place. Red and Black Day competition was won by the juniors, and when the floats were judged after the parade, the seniors, for the third year in a row, took first prize.

At halftime, Diane Rivera was crowned Homecoming Queen, by Carol Hennessy who had reigned over the event in 1979.

Her whiskers and ears symbolizing the Panther spirit, senior Evelyn Sapp (above) generated a lot of enthusiasm.

Diane will always remember the thrill of her crowning (upper right).

Constructed at Brenda Willoughby's house, the seniors' float (right) predicted a football victory.

Riders on the sophomore float show the spirit of Homecoming.

Marching Band

The Marching Band, directed by Mr. McClure, performed in the halftime shows at Varsity football games. Formations for the songs were designed by Mr. Pronti. Frequently rain dampened the instruments and uniforms at quite a few games, and it totally cancelled the Hobart game in which the band has traditionally performed. Fortunately the weather was decent in late October and the members of the Band dressed up and marched in the City of Geneva's Halloween Parade. Homecoming Halftime, for the first time, consisted of fanfares — no songs. In the spring the band will be marching in both the Seneca Falls and Gorham pageants.

The Skin of our Teeth

The masterpiece The Skin of Our Teeth by Thornton Wilder was presented as GHS' fall play on November 21 and 22. In this play, the viewer was transported to two time periods as the Antrobus family was living simultaneously in pre-historic time and in a contemporary New Jersey suburb. The family struggle through many tragedies — the Ice Age, a flood, and a war — but always get through "by the skin of their teeth."

Mr. Antrobus, the head of the family, was played by Tyrone Henderson. Heather Thompson portrayed his wife, who devoted her entire life to her children Gladys and Henry, played by Sirpa Lehtonen and Dan Liberatore respectively. Beth Wood played Sabina, the Antrobuses' housekeeper and a real vamp.

John DiDuro played two parts — the announcer and Mr. Fitzpatrick. Other roles were portrayed by Lisa Balistreri, the fortune-teller, and Lynn Gigliotti, the broadcast official. Rounding out the cast were Wendy Crouse, Terry McGlynn, Bonnie Brown, Leola Ledestich, Will Springstead, Mary Driscoll, Pat Maney, Sue Robinson, Tracy Brown, David Wood, Sarah Suppes, Lori Miller, Cindy Powers, Greg Barnard, Ed Povero, Ulsyee Thompson, Pam Gilbert, and Sandy Robinson.

Mrs. Russell directed the production with Gretchen Ahnsbrak as technical director. Assistant Stage Manager was Zina Zappler. Costumes were done by Mrs. Henderson, Lauren Mastrogiovanni, and Lori Miller.

Lisa Balistreri.

In a moving scene, Mr. Antrobus (Ty Henderson), welcomes refugees from the war that devastated the world. Leola Ledestich plays the role of the refugee.

What goes on behind the scenes plays a big part in a production's success. The 1980-81 season saw a group of dedicated people banding together to form a permanent stage crew for school productions. Pictured above are Tom Moose, Greg Barnard, Gretchen Ahnsbrak, and David Wood; Lynn Gigliotti, Nina Zappler, and Liesl Zappler.

Lori Miller, Sarah Suppes, and Tracy Brown mock the eccentric but wise fortune-teller.

Played by Heather Thompson, Mrs. Antrobus is the type of loving wife who wants only to care for her husband who, unfortunately, has eyes for someone else, and for her two darling children.

Beth Wood, the Antrobus "housekeeper", explains to Mrs. Antrobus and her daughter that the war has ended.

Paying no attention to the predictions of disaster, the revelers (right) enjoy an excitement and romance of the fair.

Panther's Pride

NEWSPAPER STAFF, Clockwise — Rich Schaefer, Tom Catalano, Beth Wood, Mr. Fouracre, Laura Bleakley, Rhett Reconnu, Carl Brownell, Dave Sharman, Kurt Michael, Steve Alvermann.

This year's Panther's Pride staff has a talented and dedicated ten person staff. As a part of their Journalism course they publish one issue of the school newspaper each month. Along with articles on school events and sports teams, the staff also covered the elections and conducted a poll on who shot J.R.

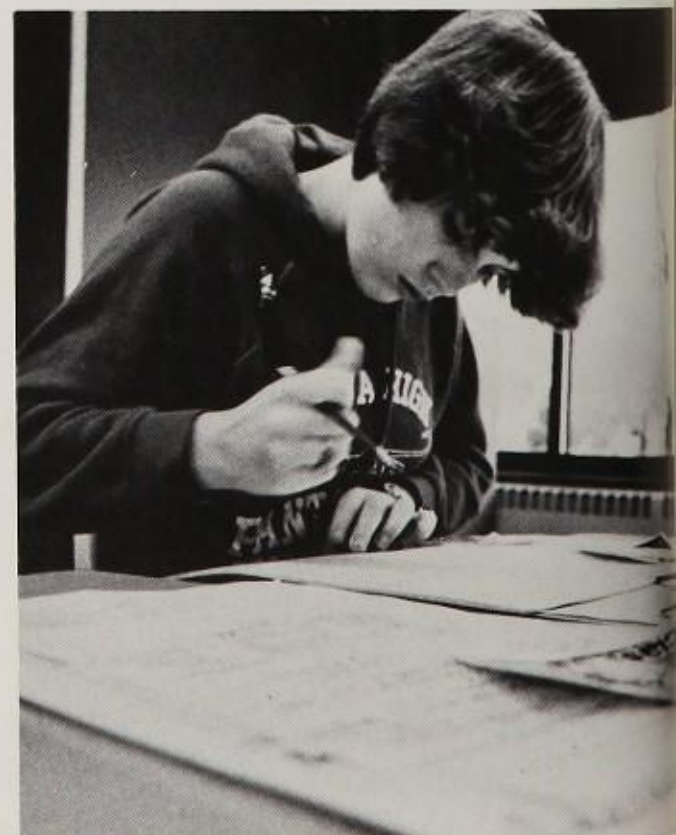

Some of the highlights of the year included a trip to the Finger Lakes Times and a visit from members of the Hobart and William Smith Newspaper staff.

The Monthly editions of the paper are printed in the Geneva High School printing class, where Mr. Mulvey supervises the offset production.

David Currie

Editor Beth Wood discusses a proofreading problem with Carl Brownell and Rhett Reconnu.

A yearbook staff's editors and advisors always are working against company deadlines, as the poster behind Judy Hessney so sternly warns.

Money is always short and is always a problem, but when it comes to financing the printing of a yearbook, budgeting becomes even tighter. This year however, the 1981 Seneca Saga staff was able to reach the public for advertisements to help support the yearbook. Also the Senior Class contributed enough funds to assure eight pages of candid photos being added to the book. The Student Council was also generous with their support this year. Their contribution will mean that a supplement will definitely be published.

Money from businesses and organizations helps finance the processing of the book, which costs over $7,000, but sales are just as important. In order to assure a book larger than the 1980 edition, enough students must purchase it early in the school year. So this year, in order to spark interest among the underclassmen, staff members visited many English classes and talked about the yearbook and why they should buy it.

Also personal notes were hung around the school to try to move people to place their orders. All these efforts worked very well, because the sales of the 1981 book were above the 500 necessary to go to press.

For only the second year ever, the 1981 yearbook has an eight-page autograph section. The much-liked Senior Index is also included. Two other sections, one on the building program for the new high school and an academics section, are new this year.

Editors and advisors spend numerous hours outside the regular school day to publish a book that the school can be proud of, one that captures the spirit of Geneva High School.

This year Spanish Club had an increased enrollment of about 30-35 members. The first get-together activity was a "Graveyard Party." This is an event that is celebrated in Spanish-speaking countries around the time of Halloween and All Souls' Day, to honor their friends and relatives who have died. Celebrated at Lisa Budgar's home, this party featured slides from the recent spring trip to Madrid and Rome. The annual Christmas party and dinner included the Spanish tradition of breaking the pinata, which was filled with candy and gum.

French Club

The GHS French Club of 1980-1981 started the year with a meeting to elect the officers. Voted into position were Beth Witte, president; Lorraine Aten, vice-president; Laura Bleakley, secretary; and Caryn Roelofs, treasurer. At the second meeting members planned the yearly bake sale, which is the only means by which the club raises funds. Over $90.00 was made. The annual Christmas party, held at Kim Keith's home, was a success. A visit from Mme. Barody, who had taken time off from teaching for minor surgery, highlighted the affair. Gifts were exchanged, and everyone left with something new.

Upper right, president Rizzieri winds up another day by making the 2:30 announcements.

This year the Student Council, led by President Jerry Rizzieri, got underway with many special activities including moving to the new school.

The first major activity was Homecoming, with the theme "Year of the Cat". The traditional dance and parade were held along with the comparatively recent tradition of choosing Homecoming Queen at halftime of the football game. As in 1979-80, the queen was selected from senior girls nominated by the student body.

Other activities included Variety Week, which boasted different special events. Each day of the week had a special meaning. Probably T-shirt and Tie and Hat Days were the most popular. Judy Hessney and Jim Alexander won in those categories.

A service project that the council helped oversee was the Red Cross Blood Drive which was held at the "old school". 72 pints of blood were donated. Once again the Council allotted $228 to support their foster child. Included in Council fund-raisers was a mug sale in October. Funds from this and other projects helped support the yearbook, Homecoming, and the prom. A special $100 scholarship in memory of Mrs. Kimball, a math and science teacher, was also endowed by the 1981 Council.

As we go to press, plans are being made for Talent Night and for Geneva High School Night on the Hobart radio station. In this latter event, in between songs, GHS students will have a minute or two to report on school-related items.

Helping Jerry with the council were vice-president David Harvey, secretary Brenda Roelofs, and treasurer Dory Pullano.

Fall teams chalk up impressive records

Geneva High's fall sports teams showed the dedication and pride common to all Panther athletes. They finished with varied results, ranging from a team qualifying for the state tournament in their sport to a team getting its first varsity win.

Girls' Varsity Tennis, coached by Dan Davids, served up a record of eight wins and three losses for a season point score of 38-17. Co-captains Mary Driscoll at first singles, and Lorraine Aten at second, turned in winning seasons of 8-3 and 8-2 respectively.

Sophomore Patty Driscoll, who played third singles in the regular season, and Aten participated as a doubles team for Sectional Play. The duo defeated Wellsville 6-1, 6-2 in the quarter finals and beat Victor in the semi-final round. Batavia defeated the Geneva team in the finals 6-3, 6-2 to put the girls in second place. Patty's and Lorraine's efforts qualified them for the State Tournament at DeWitt. Unfortunately, the twosome faltered to Clarence 6-0, 6-2 in the first round.

Congratulations to Patty and Lorraine; their path to the State Tournament was the farthest any tennis players from Geneva ever went in championship play.

On the gridiron, the Panthers fielded a team with a powerful rushing game and a stingy defense. The 1980 Varsity Football Team finished with a fine 6-2, second place league finish, and a 6-3 overall record.

The season was full of outstanding performances, both by individuals and by the team. Defensively the Panthers held Midlakes to 0 total net yards and recorded shutouts over both Mynderse and Clyde-Savanna. Senior Chris Bruno and juniors Welton Eldridge and Bill Riker consistently made the big plays.

Offensively the season was highlighted by John Snyder's three TD's against Midlakes, Anthony Grady's 87 yard TD run at Mynderse, and a great team effort in an upset win over Penn Yan on the last day of the season.

Statistically, the Panthers totally dominated their Finger Lakes opponents, outrushing them 1,264 yards to 363; outpassing them 470 yards to 246; and, most important, out-scoring them 141-38.

Grady, only a junior, led the team with 639 yards rushing and 8 TD's. Another junior, quarterback Todd Rizzieri, completed 28 of 52 passes for 369 yards and 3 TD's. Bruno also handled the place-kicking duties, converting on 10 out of 14 extra points and on a 31 yard field goal.

Rookie Varsity Coach Wayne Johnson noted that the success of the team was largely due to the offensive line of junior Gary Cowells and seniors Ed Povero, John Rivera, Bob DiDuro, and Mike Leonard.

Although many of this year's starters are graduating, a solid nucleus of returning juniors should lead next year's team to victory.

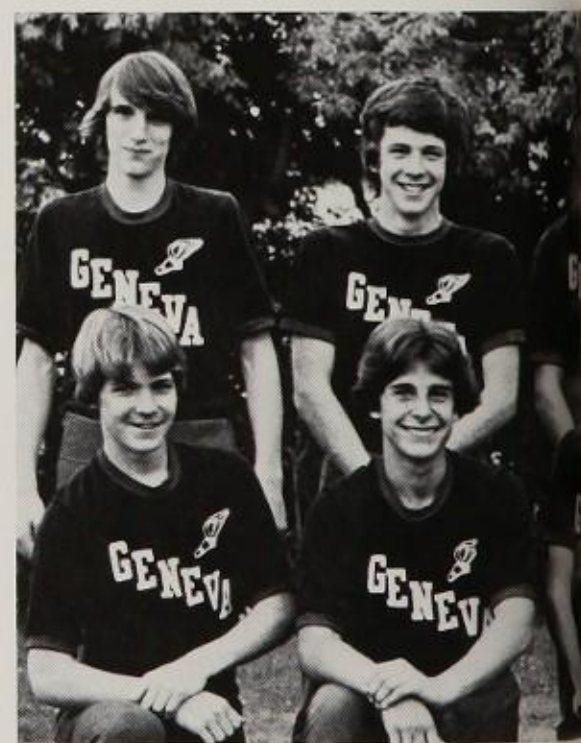

Wes Kubacki, who coached JV football, put an emphasis on improving the team's execution of the fundamentals and produced a winning season of 5-4. Captains Mike Riker and Hank Pearson provided the leadership which helped unite the team and win games.

Quarterbacks Joe Acquesta and Joe DeMocko turned in several impressive performances to lead the Panthers' offense. The backfield was powered by running back Pearson, fullback Jeff Principio, and halfbacks Riker and Jim Hennessy. Sophomore Steve Robinson, one of the Panthers' wide receivers, showed his consistency by catching several critical passes. Standout offensive linemen included Kurt Michael and Jim Emerson.

Defensively, Riker, Chris Cure, and Principio proved to be the leaders.

Highlights of the season included a 1,000 yard rushing season by Co-Captain Pearson and a come-from-behind victory against Waterloo.

Next year's JV team should be helped because of the experience ninth graders had on the field this year. This season Coach Natti, instead of emphasizing winning, followed a philosophy of "giving everyone equal playing time." The team's record of two wins and four losses doesn't measure the amount of knowledge and experience the athletes gained over the course of the season. Many talented players, such as halfback Scott Bynum, fullback Steve Phillips, and quarterbacks Bill Jordan, Ron Guerri and Skip Guerri, should be valuable assets to next year's JV team.

The Girls' Varsity Soccer Team ended their season with a record of 9-6 in the league and 9-7 overall. Coach Woodworth stressed that solid team play led to their best finish year. Only a narrow shoot-out loss to Penn Yan on the final day of the season stood in the way of a sectional berth.

The season was highlighted by a 4-1 victory over crosstown rival DeSales and a three goal performance by junior Mary Hickey against Midlakes. The team was led offensively by Hickey, with five goals, six assists; senior Marlene Patnesky with eight goals, and senior Chrissy Voight with seven goals. At the other end of the field, Co-Captains fullback Carol Hansen, and goalie Brenda Roelofs anchored the defense.

With eleven letter-winners returning, next year's team looks to be even better.

Due to better teamwork and more hustle, the Girls' JV Soccer team made progress this season. In her second year as coach Miss Gorgonzola guided the squad to an overall record of 9-7.

Coach Gorgonzola was impressed by rookie goalies Susan Poole and Deana Constable. Roberta Palmieri, right in-ner on the forward line, played an out-standing season and was Geneva's high scorer. The enthusiasm of Becky Gillotte, the team's only freshman, contributed to a fine team effort.

The girls never lost a game by more than one point, which made their con-tests very exciting.

Competing on the varsity level for the first time, the Boys's Soccer Team finished 1-12 in the league and 2-13 overall. The team concentrated mainly on learning the basic skills and building for next year. The season was highlighted by the team's first win ever — over Gananda — and their first league win, which was over Dundee. In addition, three men were elected to the Finger Lakes All-League soccer team — John Loucks, Uly Thompson, and Don DeVaney.

Coach Veltman cited the play of senior leading scorer Bob Ritter, of senior Ulysses Thompson, junior MVP John Loucks, junior Dave Knuuti, and Most Improved Player, freshman Jeff Roelofs. Goalies Shawn Willis, and Tim Finnerty combined for more than 300 saves while sophomore fullback Mike Swim provided solid play to lead the defense. With all but four players return-ing and a year of varsity experience un-der their belt, the team looks to be com-petitive next season.

Finally, lack of both experience and numbers hurt the Panther harriers this season, but their 2-9 record is not a true indication of the team's dedication. Junior Brian Sanderson and senior Pat Sutton consistently led the team in in-vitationals as well as dual meets. With all but one runner returning, Coach Wheeler is looking for an improved record next year.

Cheerleaders

Spirit is an important part of school life at GHS. This is generated under the fine leadership of the cheerleaders. The girls on all squads spend approximately two hours a day practicing their floor routines, mounts, jumps, and sideline cheers to be used at the games.

Last summer the varsity cheerleaders attended a camp in Pennsylvania that has helped all the squads in their technique and style. The varsity basketball cheerleaders competed for the number one spot in the league in Section V competition.

Indoor Track

Indoor track allows student participation in Track and Field competition during the winter months. From December to March, Saturday meets are held at the U of R, at Manley Field House in Syracuse, at SUNY Cortland, Eisenhower, and Cornell. Coach Canale said that the team practices outside, in the weight room, and whenever we can "sneak into" a gym or hallway.

The team participated in some "Age-Group" meets where the athletes are divided into 17-18, 15-16, and 13-14 year old divisions. In addition, they have also been in several invitational meets where up to fifty teams from the U.S. and Canada have been involved. At season's end there is a Section V Championship meet and a New York State meet.

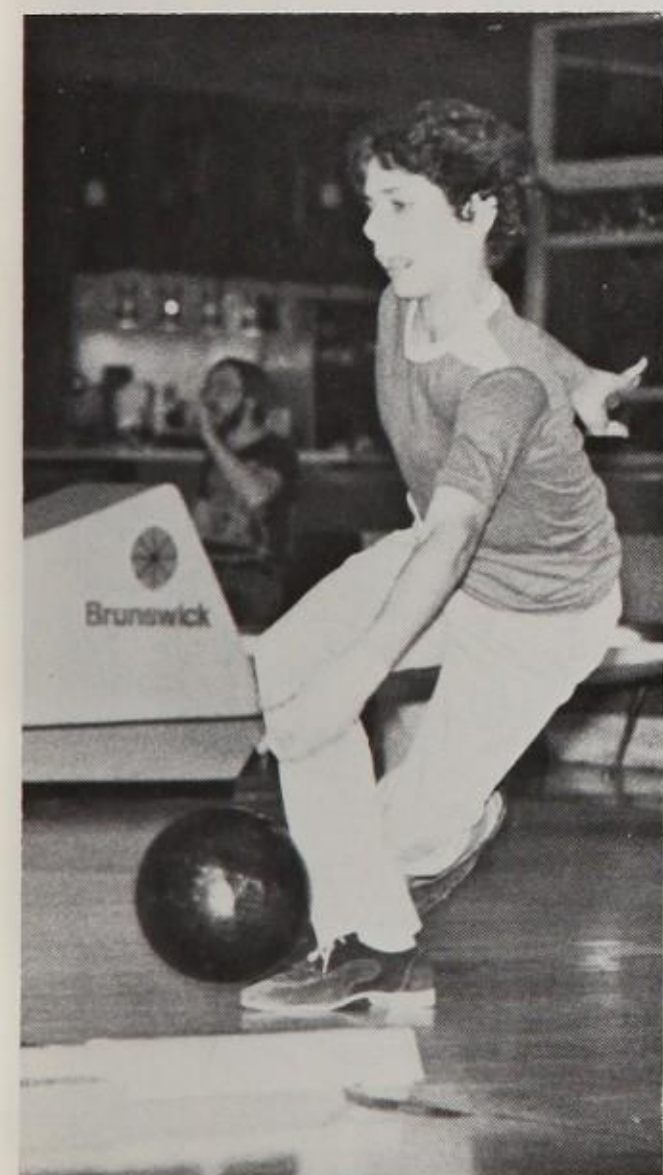

To earn a varsity letter, an athlete must earn ten points, which every man on the squad has done. Leading the GHS team with a point total of over 150 was junior

Jim Alexander, who competed in the hurdles and sprints. Other men who topped 100 points were Bill Riker, pole vault and sprints; Jim Rector, sprints; and Pat Fountain, high jump and sprints.

Other team members and their events included Mike Riker, pole vault and long jump; Bryan Sanderson, Ed Komara and Bill Flick — distance; Bob Ernst, Pat Sutton, and Mike Fospero — middle distance; Steve Bynum, hurdles and middle distance.

Also, Mark Switzer, Dan Guerri, and Vaughn Nelson — sprints; and Dan Collins, Matt George, and Rick Reeder — shot put.

Coach Canale remarked, "We have some members who will carry over into the outdoor season in the spring, and others who are engaged in different activities at that time."

In an intramural game, Crystal Patrick (above) waits for the ball to come her way as Rosemary Cosentino (top) perfects her serve.

Intramurals

According to Mr. Ryan, who organizes and oversees the program, the 1980 volleyball intramural season was a success with ten teams involving over 100 students playing many close games. The championship match pitted the Boat People against the "L" Cubbies. In a hard-fought game, the "L" Cubbies — Ron Laurenza, Lauren Holly, Andy Beaudry, Kris Hansen, Dave Currie, Sue Russell, Jeff Jahn, and Rachel Lamson — were victorious.

Winter Sports Wrap-up

GHS fans found that their winter sports teams helped provide some excitement that relieved the short days and long nights from December through February.

On the courts, the 1980-81 Boys Volleyball team, coached by Mr. Wheeler, finished the season with a 19-17 record, which was good enough to qualify them for sectional play.

The season was highlighted by a first time ever victory over Victor. Seniors Bill McGuigan and Ed Povero were the top spikers, while sophomore Joe DeMocko's setting was "the cornerstone of the offense." Also contributing to the team's success was the serving of junior Steve Stowell and the excellent overall play of junior Scott Baroody and senior John DiDuro. With four starters returning, the team should be a squad to watch next year.

The Girls Varsity Volleyball team ended their season with a 6-6 record and narrowly missed a sectional berth. The Panthers were led by the serving of junior Kris Loucks and senior Becky Millis, the spiking of seniors Brenda Roelofs and Sharon Daniels, and the all-around play of Marlene Patnesky and Carole Hansen. With some help from the upcoming jayvees, Coach Khoury hopes for a good 1981-82 record.

Showing much improvement over the previous year, Coach MacDonald's JV Volleyball team ended the season with a 7-3 record. Sparking the team was the outstanding serving of Trina Sutton, Brenda Steen and Lori Westfall, who had a perfect game of 15 straight points.

Excellent overall play by Barb Manning, Barb Urbano, Yvonne Lowrey, and Helen DiCola and fantastic hustle and dedication shown by Rhonda Parker, Crystal Cure, Cindy Lennon, and Cheryl Burnett added to the team's success.

As a team, the Geneva High Finmen were hurt by a lack of swimmers, but that did not stop them from turning in many fine individual performances. Dave Simmons, in his first year as GHS swim coach, had much to be happy about.

For instance senior captain Andy Beaudry broke his own records in both the six and eleven dive competitions with 244.6 and 397.05 points respectively. Beaudry, in his fifth season on the varsity, won the league diving title handily, took 2nd in the sectionals, and, as the year-book went to press, was hoping to advance to the state meet.

Also placing 2nd in the sectionals was the 200 yd. medley relay team of Rich Schaefer, Carl Brownell, Jeff Roach, and Beaudry. Outstanding swimming by senior Mark Comstock, juniors Steve Cummins and Jack Witte, and the Kinsella brothers, Jeff and Kirk, also helped to offset the depth problems.

With all but two of the men returning next season, Geneva should be back in the race for the championship.

Although there were several fine individual performances turned in, the Varsity Wrestlers ended the year with a somewhat disappointing 5-10 record. Coach Knisely's team did boast six men with twenty or more wins. Leading the way was sophomore heavyweight Lou Cosentino at 24-5, followed by sophomore Jeff Principio, 23-5; senior Tom Parker, 21-7; sophomore Mike DeRaddo, 21-9; junior Don DeVaney, 21-10; and junior Ed Principio, 20-4.

In addition to compiling a fine record during regular season matches, Cosentino also won the Webster Tournament, the Newark Tournament, and our own Panther Invitational. Geneva wrestlers who placed in the sectionals were DeVaney, Parker, and Cosentino, 2nd places: Ed Principio, 3rd; and De Raddo and Jeff Principio, 4th.

Next year, with five wrestlers with twenty or more wins under their belts returning to the mats, the Panthers will be a power to be reckoned with. Additional help will come from JV wrestlers, who, as a team, compiled a winning season's record. The varsity can look forward to the depth provided with grapplers such as Matt Watt, Ben Mittiga, Steve Parker, and Jack Woznick.

As of press time, the Girls Varsity Basketball team had an record. Senior guard Sharon Daniels, possessing the ability to shoot from the outside as well as to go inside, led the team offensively. Coach Davids cited senior Becky Millis as "the top defensive player" and was pleased with Carole Hansen's rebounding ability. The playmaking of Alma Alvarado, a junior in her second year of varsity play, and the scoring talent of freshman Trina Sutton were also instrumental in leading the Panthers to a creditable finish.

The JV version of girls basketball had four sophomore starters — Rhonda Parker, Lori Westfall, Olivia Gandy, and Patty Driscoll — and one eighth grader — Mindy McGuigan. Parker, who has a good jump shot, amassed over 100 points in season's play. Probably the most thrilling contest of the junior Panthers' season was the second game against Penn Yan. In that game the girls were down at one point by 19 but came back to lose by only one bucket.

A young and talented squad describes this year's bowling team. The team ended their season at .500, 24-24, which placed them third in the Eastern Division of the Finger Lakes Bowling League.

Standout Barry Schram set a new league record at 298 and ended his season at 7-1. Dave Adair bowled a three game high series of 624. The Panthers also rolled an impressive three game high at 2990.

Coach Khoury cited the dedication and long practice sessions as factors that enabled Schram, Adair, Tim Fitzgerald, and Joe Puma to participate in sectional play.

On the courts, improvement in teamwork and hustle were the keys which resulted in a successful GHS JV basketball team. The squad posted a 15-3 record and had four of five starters' averages in double figures.

Captains Hank Pearson, Ronnie Scott, and Lonnie Spearman combined efforts to drive the team to a surprise win over Newark, 55-48. Steve Antinelli and Neil Augustine also proved themselves winners by contributing to the team effort with their fine all-around play.

After a slow start, the Boys Varsity Basketball Team finished hotter than a pistol, winning nine in a row before losing to Newark in the quarterfinals of sectional play.

Coach Wenzel, in his first year as varsity mentor, said that "excellent overall play" paved the way to a 14-6 record. Highlight of the season was a regular season victory over then number one Newark, 54-52, and an upset over rival Canandaigua in the final league contest.

The shooting of junior Joe Augustine, the rebounding of senior Bob Sapp, and the ball-handling of junior Jim Natelli all made for an exciting season. Also instrumental to the Panthers' success were the hustle and dedication of juniors Mike Rice, Welton Eldridge, Alton Sutton, and Todd Rizzieri, and of senior Chris Bruno who was sidelined with an ankle injury for the last part of the season. Returning seven lettermen and four of five starters, Coach Wenzel hopes to have an outstanding 1981-82 year.

Academics

Krista Rasmussen, Janice Watling, Jeff Maio, Ruth Arnold, Berta Arms, Liz Johnson, Karen Ilacqua, Chris Smith, and Brenda Flowers took advantage of the library in the 'old' school, using the facilities for academic research or leisure reading.

Entering a high school designed with the school community in mind was a rejuvenating experience for GHS students, staff, and administration. The building — large, airy, and colorful inside — is a cheerful contrast to the older style building on Milton and Pulteney Streets.

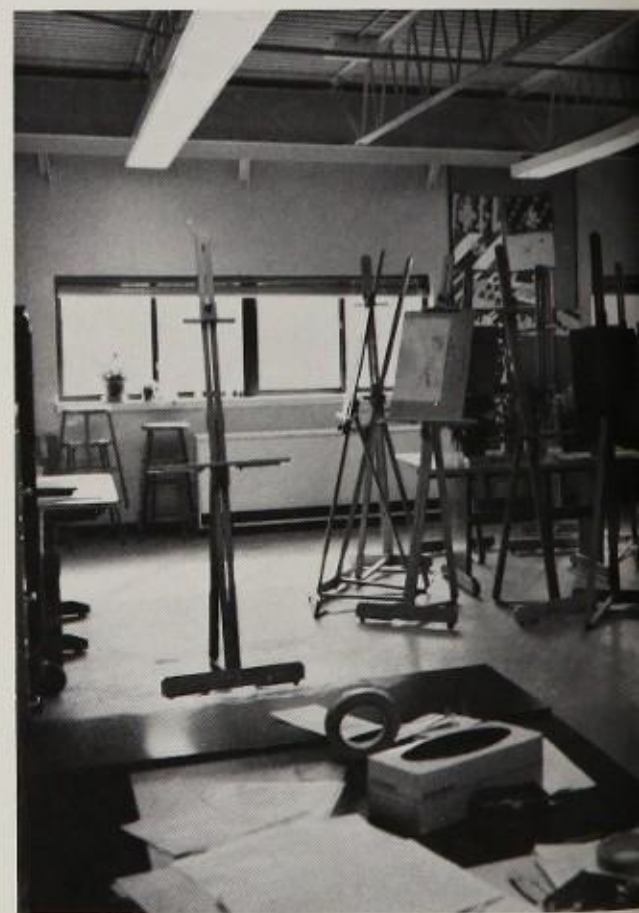

The gym, cafeteria, student lounge, auditorium, music, and industrial arts rooms — all noisy areas, are situated in the south part of the first floor. Academic areas, grouped in the north section of the building on three levels are thus effectively isolated and insulated from the noise. The offices themselves provide a buffer between the first floor's open areas and the business and language rooms.

As students and staff enter from the main entrance on Carter Road, they walk down the skylighted "Student Street" which will ultimately be decorated with hanging plants and banners constructed by the Art and Home Economics Departments.

Near the cafeteria, an isolated open stairway leads to the Instructional Media Center which houses the library and Media Center. On all three floors spacious teacher-planning areas with ditto machines and storage space are located across from individual student study areas which have small, informal tables and chairs.

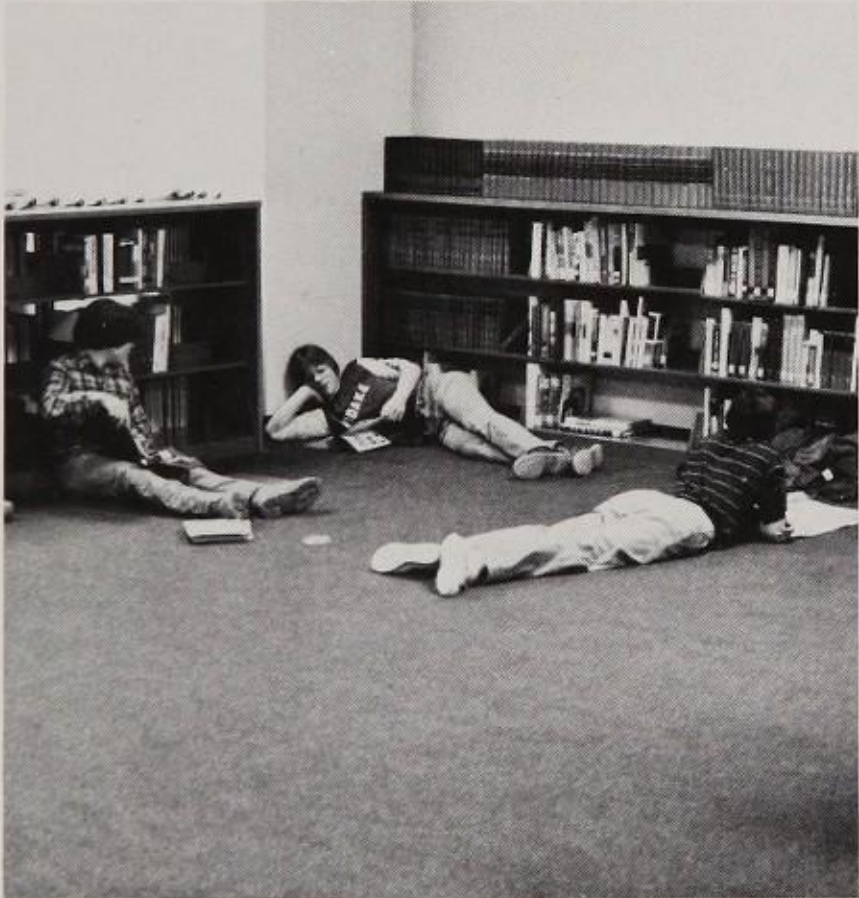

Improvements in equipment are noticeable. Typing classes now use electric machines; each classroom features a cable TV hook-up; and language rooms have headphone antennas built into the ceilings. Blackboards, which are brown, convert into tackboards and slatted shades cover large window areas.

The Board of Education and Principal Scalise, who has taken a homeowner's pride and interest in the project, have given the Geneva people an exciting, big time addition to the community.

In the Carter Rd. building an Art Room (above) that more than doubles the area in the old suite features easels, a drying rack, and generous display area. On the facing page is a view of the older, cramped Art Room in the GHS built in 1926.

One of the sacrifices made in planning the new school was a cut in the number of biology rooms from three to two. Below, Mrs. Turri lectures in the 200 wing of the old school. Below right, sophomores slave over a bio lab in Room 302 of the new building.

The new library (above center and right) had no furniture when the move was made. Having been promised for February, actual delivery was then put off for at least four months. Students, in the meantime, took advantage of the carpeted floor to read and research.

Senior Honors

There are many honors that Geneva High School seniors may receive, but there is one so-called honor that is bestowed upon four senior students that is a rough job. That job is functioning as an officer of the Senior Class (Class of 1981 officers are pictured upper right this page). Their duties require a lot of work and time. One such duty includes the overseeing of fund-raising for the activities necessary for a successful graduation.

There are many important academic honors that senior students receive. Probably one of the highest awards that any student can receive is election to the National Honor Society. A special committee of faculty select the students for the NHS. Their selection is based on the students' qualifications in the areas of scholarship, leadership, service, and character. Three inductions for the NHS are held—one in the spring of the junior year and one in the following fall and spring of the senior year.

Other awards which are won by students include the Hogarth Award in Home Economics which was won by Evelyn Lopez and Frances Strongs. TJ Bentley won first prize in the Arthur Hammond History contest, a prize awarded to the student who writes the best essay in an area of American History. The Elmira Key Award, which is awarded to a student who exhibits the qualities of an outstanding scholar in intellectual achievement, has a fine character and is a good school citizen went to Marc VanArsdale. Brenda Roelofs won the RPI Award for outstanding performance in math. The Dr. Martin Luther King Award, which went to Tyrone Henderson and Matt George, is presented to the two young men in the class who best exemplify the qualities of citizenship, service, and concern for one's fellow man. Carole Hansen won a citizenship award, also—the Harold Hawley Award.

Boys' State and Girls' State are two other important honors that students can receive. Lori Miller from the Class of 1981 was nominated to attend Girls' State while Jerry Rizzieri, Marc VanArsdale and Matt George attended Boys' State. The faculty voted on those students who demonstrated leadership, the ability to get along with others, mental alertness, honesty, and good citizenship.

Thirteen senior boys were selected to belong to the Junior Rotarians. Learning the goals and functions of the Rotary Club, a national organization, is the objective of this program.

In addition to the honors noted above, Gretchen Ahmsbrak, TJ Bentley, Kris Cocola, Brenda Roelofs, and Marc VanArsdale each received a Letter of Commendation from the National Merit.

Mr. Bernard Brosius — Chairman, Guidance Department. Mr. Robert Smith — Counselor. Miss Patricia Wiltse — Counselor.

Guidance Services

Three counselors, whose total experience represents fifty-six years in the field, comprise Geneva High School's Guidance Department. Under Head Counselor Bernard Brosius, each counselor deals with approximately 310 students from the school's four classes. Generally functioning as liaison not only between student and teacher or student and administrator, but also between the school and community, the counselors have varied duties. Included are keeping student records up to date and overseeing scheduling. They also do personal counseling, help students explore job areas, and arrange conferences between student, teacher, and parents. Test administration and interpretation is another part of the job. Finally, the counselors, who are responsible for writing recommendations and providing transcripts of high school records, also help college-bound seniors in their quest for the proper school.

Honored in the field of art: Row 1 — Jeff Rinick, certificate of participation, Elmira College Art Competition; Bruce Borsa, 3rd prize, Elmira College Art Competition; Kate O'Connor, GTA scholarship, Elmira College Art Competition Certificate, Sibley's Scholastic Art Exhibit Certificate; Debbie Leonard, 1st place in poster contest for Ontario County Association for Retarded Children. Row 2 — Sue Russell and Gwen Schaefer, Certificates of Recognition, poster contest; Tracy Brown, Elmira College Art Show Certificate, and Paula Tyman, Sibley's Certificate of Merit.

Editor Campbell discusses the process by which GHS students are nominated for academic awards with Counselor Brosius.

Recognized for achievement in foreign languages: Row 1 — Kris Cocola, French Achievement and Most Outstanding Spanish Student; Caryn Roelofs, French Achievement. Row 2 — Peggy Fluker, Dan Liberatore, Most Improved, Spanish. Row 3 — Gretchen Ahrnsbrak, French Achievement and Latin Award; Alton Sutton, Most Improved in Spanish.

Work Experience

Work experience is gained in different ways. One common method is the part-time job; in fact, as soon as some students get their licenses, they have to enter the job market so that the gas tank can be kept filled. Others go to the part-time job as a way to start saving for a college education. As the price of gas and other "necessities" rises, so does the minimum wage. In January of 1980, it was $3.10, but twelve months later it had risen to $3.35. Many local places employ GHS students, including Tops Supermarket, McDonald's, Burger King, Dunkin' Donuts, Star Supermarket, Long John Silver's, Carl's, Fay's; the list goes on.

On the academic level, GHS offers two programs which give the student an opportunity to earn school credit for working. Usually seniors, whose programs are slightly more flexible, take advantage of these. In the Student Teacher Assistant Program (STAP), the Guidance Department assigns the student to an elementary school in the district for two periods a day. During that time, the student assists the teacher, mainly dealing with the younger children but they also learn the clerical aspects of the teaching job.

The Work Study Program functions strictly on an occupational level. If a senior is interested in a certain job, he himself contacts a Genevan already in that vocation and arranges to shadow him. This year five seniors received credit for this program. Steve Benkovich worked with Neil Sjoblom, a GHS graduate himself and currently a local photographer. Cathy Avery gained experience working in the office of Town Supervisor Art Rundell while Tracy Gilbert was at the Geneva Police Department. Steph Felice worked with Jack DeBolt, a local accountant, and Bill Hausner worked at National Bank.

Practical Arts

Industrial Arts is a popular elective for students attending Geneva High. Courses range from Mechanical Drawing to Woodworking to Electronics. The IA Survey, intended to give the student a sample of the options available in the department, is a popular elective for incoming freshmen. Upperclassmen frequently elect a course in printing, ceramics, engine tech, or recreation vehicle maintenance and repair — all of which cater to special interests.

A variety of subjects are offered in the area of Home Economics. Interior Decorating, Singles Cooking, Gourmet Cooking, Sewing I and II, and House Design each offer ½ unit of credit. The most popular course this year was Singles Cooking, taken by both sexes. In this class the students learned to cook, of course, but they also learned how to plan a menu and purchase groceries. Another favorite among GHS'ers was Gourmet Cooking. Here students prepared food a little more interesting than the "ordinary" diet. They also cooked cultural foods, including Italian, French, Chinese, and Soul.

Making a point about the westward movements of the Germanic peoples, Mr. Peters (below) uses a map as a visual aid.

On October 31, 1980, sophomore Cheryl Gorton was one of 374 GHS'ers who cast their votes in the mock-Presidential election sponsored by the Government class. The seniors in that course prepared a video tape that clarified the three candidates' stands on major issues and presented it to selected English classes. After the election, which went to Carter at GHS but Reagan nationwide, they analyzed the voting to see whether their video-tape had influenced the results.

Social Studies

Beginning with the Class of 1982, three years of Social Studies plus two half-year electives will become a requirement for graduation from Geneva High School. Electives currently offered are Government, Economics, Sociology, Psychology, Local History, the Wild West, Current Issues, and Advanced European Culture. Electives which will possible be offered in the future are Urban Studies, Consumer Economics, Anthropology, Latin American History, and Advanced Placement American History. Most of these courses will be basic introductory ones and would be especially helpful if students plan to pursue those areas in college.

Fine Arts

As head of the Instrumental Music Department, Mr. John Fabrizio directs both the concert and the stage bands. This year honors were given to three students. John DiDuro and Matt George were nominated for McDonald's All American Band. In addition, Matt played with the Ontario All County Stage Band. Representing Geneva in the Ontario All County Orchestra were Lorraine Aten and John DiDuro.

The Varsity Singers, directed by Mrs. Mollie Steele, is composed of thirty-five voices, double the size of last year's group. This year three students were selected for All State — Lisa Balistreri, Katie McGowan, and Heather Thompson. On January 30th and 31st, Carolyn Smith, Katie McGowan, Carol Brandt, Carrie Curvin, Pam Crosier, Heather Thompson, Steve Myer, Joe Boehman, and David Wood participated in Ontario All County. As a group the Varsity singers sang in the holiday concerts and participated in Homecoming and several community functions.

The GHS Art Department offers eight electives, some full year programs and others one semester long. The philosophy of the department is reflected in their unique spelling of the word as ARRRT. The three R's stand for resourceful, respectful, and responsible.

The move to the new school was beneficial to the department. First, their location on the second instead of the bottom floor is advantageous. There is also much more space, including individual and group work areas. There is a drawing and painting studio equipped with easels and stools, and the crafts and ceramics area has tables. In addition to the standard display area and tackboard, the students' work is also shown on mirrored wall space.

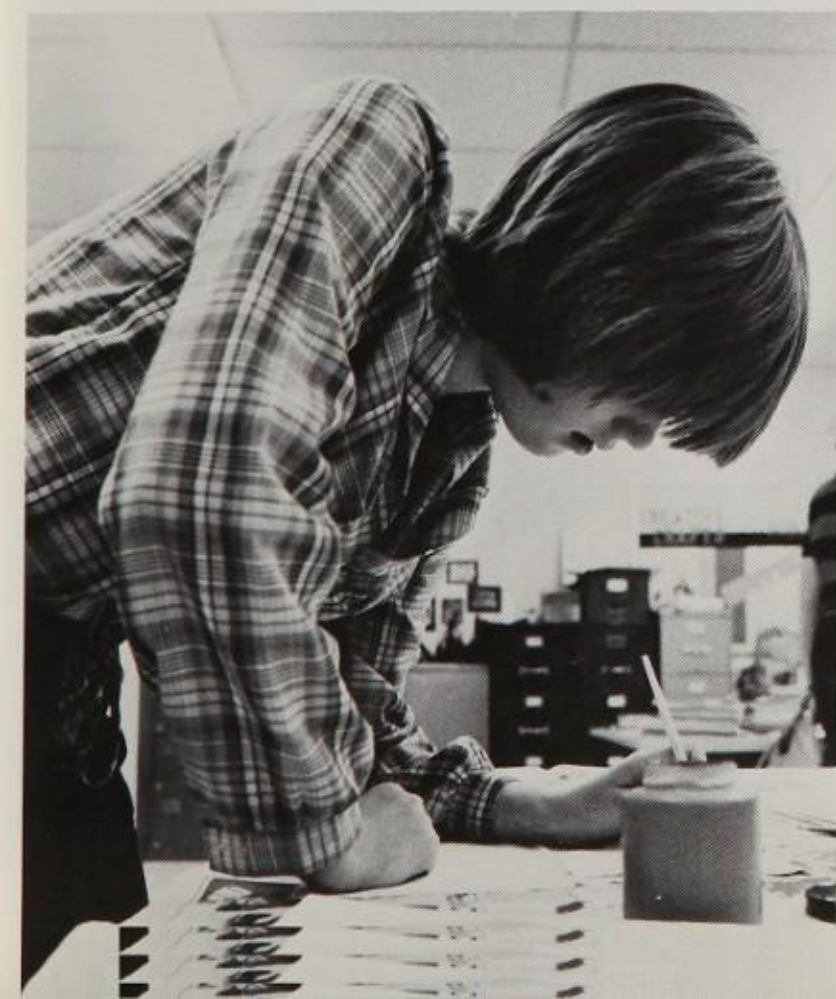

Mr. Fabrizio (far left) wants more volume from his woodwinds.

One of the most valuable courses open to college-bound students is Personal Typing. Under Mr. Smith's instruction, Kevin Best (top) learns the proper way to center material on a manuscript.

Getting a "blue card" is one of the rites of passage of young adults. Mr. Knisely checks out Chip Arthur (above) on the standard transmission car provided as a Driver Ed vehicle by a local car dealer.

Life Skills

With enrollment increasing every year, the Business Department is an expanding area. Eighteen courses are offered — typing, Introduction to Business, bookkeeping, retailing, secretarial courses, and law being among the more popular ones. Department Head Robert Quigley commented that more students realize that business education is important whether a person starts working or continues his education after graduation. Department members look forward to a productive learning program at the new high school. Facilities there include more IBM electric typewriters and new adding machines for accounting and secretarial courses.

Geneva High School has one of the area's more viable Driver Education programs. With two teachers available, sophomores are able to request and receive credit for participating in this life skills program.

Mr. Robert Quigley — Chairman, Business Education. Mrs. Evelyn Chapman — Secretarial Courses.

Mr. Richard Loveland — Business Education. Mr. Robert Paradiso — Business Education.

Mr. Curt Smith — Business Education. Mr. Carl Wenzel — Business Education.

Mr. Donald Ward.

At Geneva High School, the mathematics department offers a variety of courses. The seven person staff handles over 480 students. Courses are geared to all tastes and range from Basic Math to college level calculus. Within the last five years, mathematics programs have been instituted in the field of computers. Both Data Processing and Computer Programming are electives popular with all four classes at the high school.

Many of the students who work toward a math sequence for their diploma also take numerous science courses. The school's six science teachers deal with nearly 600 of the 900 students. A student can choose from a dozen different courses, from General Science to Advanced Placement Biology, the latter being a course which offers college credit to the student who achieves a certain score on the AP exam. The new high school's facilities have enabled the department to develop two new courses — horticulture and plant propagation.

Language Arts

Every student who graduates from a New York State high school must have four units of credit in English. State achievement tests in that area are administered at the end of the junior year. The recent laws that instituted competency testing have meant that the GHS English Department, in rewriting the curriculum, has emphasized writing skills in all four years. In addition to English offered on the Regents and non-Regents levels, the department teaches elective courses in Speech, Drama, Journalism, and Creative Writing.

Mr. Franklin Young — Dept. Chairman, Eng. 11, 12. Mrs. Nancy Bailey — Eng. 9. Mr. Douglas Duncan — Eng. 12. Mr. John Fouracre — Eng. 12. Mrs. Kathleen Henderson — Eng. 11, 12.

Mrs. Virginia Loveland — Eng. 10. Mrs. Nancy Russell — Speech, Drama. Mrs. Carol Soderlund — Eng. 9. Miss Mary Lou Strawway — Eng. 11, 12. Mr. Douglas Tepper — Eng. 10.

Foreign Languages

Mrs. Azizeh Baroody
— Department
Chairman, French.
Mrs. Marien Canale
— Spanish.

Miss Debra Robbins
— Latin. Mrs. Janet
VanKeuren —
Spanish.

The foreign language program at Geneva High School is very popular, with an estimated fifty per cent of the student body enrolled in one or more courses. Languages offered are French 1-4, Spanish 1-4, Latin 1-4, Latin in Modern English, Conversational German and Conversational Italian. The language teachers feel that facilities in the new school will allow for expansion in the program.

Using flash cards helps beginning Spanish students (below) familiarize themselves with correct pronunciation.

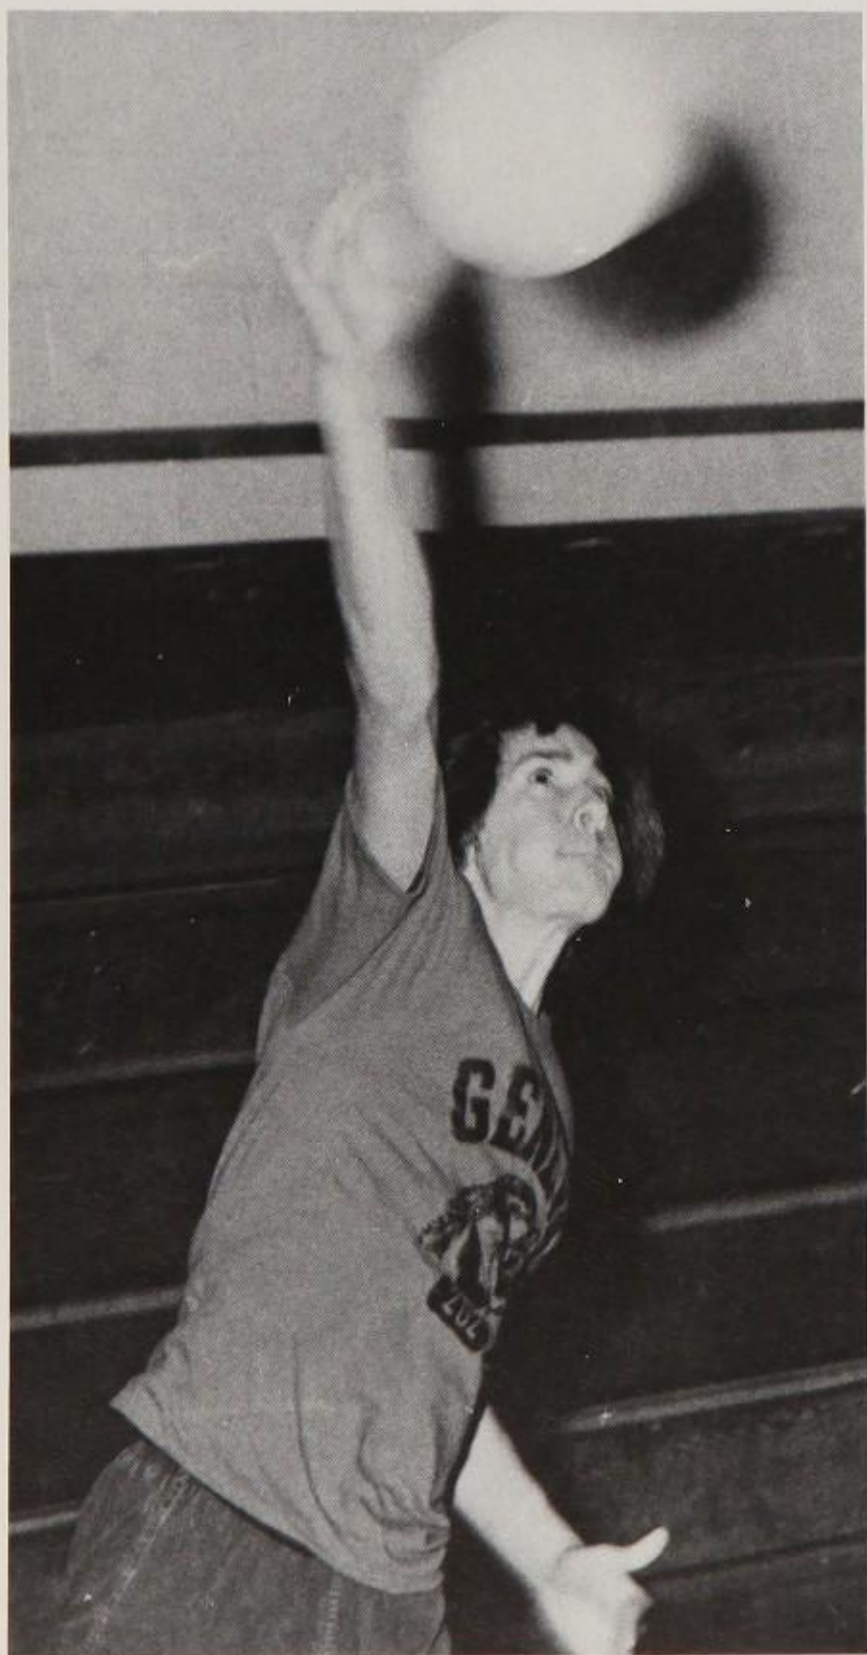

In Conversational Italian (bottom), Mr. Guerra helps the class achieve the inflections of a native speaker.

Physical Education

Mr. Robert Keenan
— Phys Ed, Health.

Mrs. Susan Kuryla
— Phys Ed. Mr. Guy
Spader — Phys Ed,
A.D.

Mrs. Ruth Whiting —
Phys Ed, Health.

Under GHS's physical education program students can receive credit in two different classes. If the required phys ed (or gym) class, the student earns $\frac{1}{4}$ credit; in the elective Lifesaving Course, he earns $\frac{1}{2}$ credit. The required phys ed class is designed to build and to promote growth and development in a safe and practical manner. Among the sports included in this program are swimming, basketball, volleyball, soccer, softball for the girls, and football for the boys. The elective class provides the student with the knowledge and skills necessary to save his own or another person's life in the event of a water emergency. Up on successful completion of the course, the student can try for an Advanced Lifesaving Certificate, issued by the American Red Cross.

Special Services

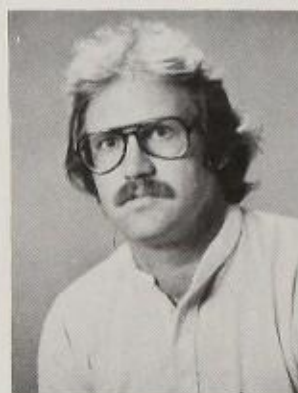

Mrs. Anna Lou Briskey — Librarian. Mrs. Phyllis DeVito — Nurse.

Mr. Donald Khoury — Special Education. Mr. Jack McDonald — Individualized English, Math.

Miss Louisa Miller — Learning Disabilities. Mr. Patrick Ryan — Reading.

An important part of any high school program is the school library. The GHS version carries a comprehensive selection of periodicals as well as having an excellent reference section. The library functions as the hub of the language arts and history programs.

Health services are overseen by the school nurse. In addition to supervising physicals for athletes, updating student medical records, and working on an individual basis with students who want special help with diet and nutrition, Mrs. DeVito this year initiated a Blood Bank which involved students and faculty and was extremely successful.

In addition to course requirements needed for graduation, all students must satisfy competency standards in Reading, Writing, and Mathematics. In the area of math a student must pass either a Regents level math course or the RCT in Mathematics, available from ninth grade on. In language arts, the students must pass either the English 11R exam and course or the RCT in Reading and Writing, which are administered from Grade 11 on. Teachers are available for special help for those who may be weak in one or more of the areas tested in the Competency program.

In Memoriam

Being a freshman

Being a freshman isn't the easiest thing in the world. At the beginning of the year, they were blamed for many things, including the crowded conditions in the halls. Since that time the "cold shoulders" have warmed up, and the freshmen feel more welcome. When members of the class were asked to express their feelings about being in high school, many complained about being the babies in the school. Others, however, were more articulate.

For instance, Mike Ritter feels the "freshman gang is great spirited and really cool." But Dave Newcomb was "mad" because the class never got a chance to be the "big guys" at the junior high. Linda Marribitt, however, likes "having a chance to be with the older classes instead of at the junior school.

Being a freshman to Beth Brown means taking a "sense of responsibility" and feeling "older and wiser." But Jeff Roelofs and Jack Alvermann see the situation differently, as being "the pee wees" and "a small kid in a large crowd." Lynne Alexander says it means "not being called a kid."

Many frosh showed maturity in their comments, including Lynne Carter who feels that now is the "time to mature and think about your future," and Tyrone Collins, who likes being at the high school "because the work is harder." Mary Jo Iannopollo says this year means "growing up and wanting to be a part of everything that goes on." Finally, Angie Smith commented: "But I don't think of myself as a freshman but as a person."

Being a sophomore

Katie Sherring and Kelly Natelli feel that "being one" means having to be at school by 7:55 A.M. every weekday. Dana Downer and Kim Perry said that "being one" means being watched over and picked on by the seniors. "Being one" is being a sophomore.

Some sophomores have mixed ideas about their situation in school and in life. One girl said that this year means getting older, learning to take more responsibility, and staying out later at night. Then she added two definite bad points: "It means my parents watch me more carefully" and "It means everything is boring."

Others feel that they are at an awkward age, "past the initiation rites and looking forward to driving," as Steve Alvermann put it. Sybil Kean says the sophs are "in the middle of things," and are the first sophomore class to move to the new high school.

"You're on the way up; you're not on the bottom anymore," said Stef Ansley. Shari Smith said being a member of the Class of 1983 is different: "I feel like a youngster, but at the same time I feel much older."

To sum up, Sarah Suppes commented: "Being a sophomore is like being one of the new kids on the block. It means being accepted by the upperclassmen. It means we're not little kids anymore, and we never will be. It means study. It means fun!"

Sophomores' talents put them

Members of the Class of 1983 are a competitive bunch, working long hours to achieve success in fields outside of the classroom. Three of these sophomores who have earned honors in the big world out there are Tim Smolinski, Pam Palmieri, and Garrett Thompson.

Tim is a chess champion. When he was eight, he started learning the game by watching his parents play. By junior high school, he was good enough to play competitively.

In May of 1979, Tim entered his first chess tournament, the U.S. National in Philadelphia. There he took fifth out of 115 junior high students. In September of 1979, he won $50 and a trophy for his first place finish in the Dr. Marchand Tournament in Rochester. In 1979, Tim won a total of $150 in prize money and three trophies. In this year, from September to November of 1980, he was victorious in seven of the eight tourneys he entered. Tim earns all the money necessary for his entry fees, hotel bills, and other tourney expenses.

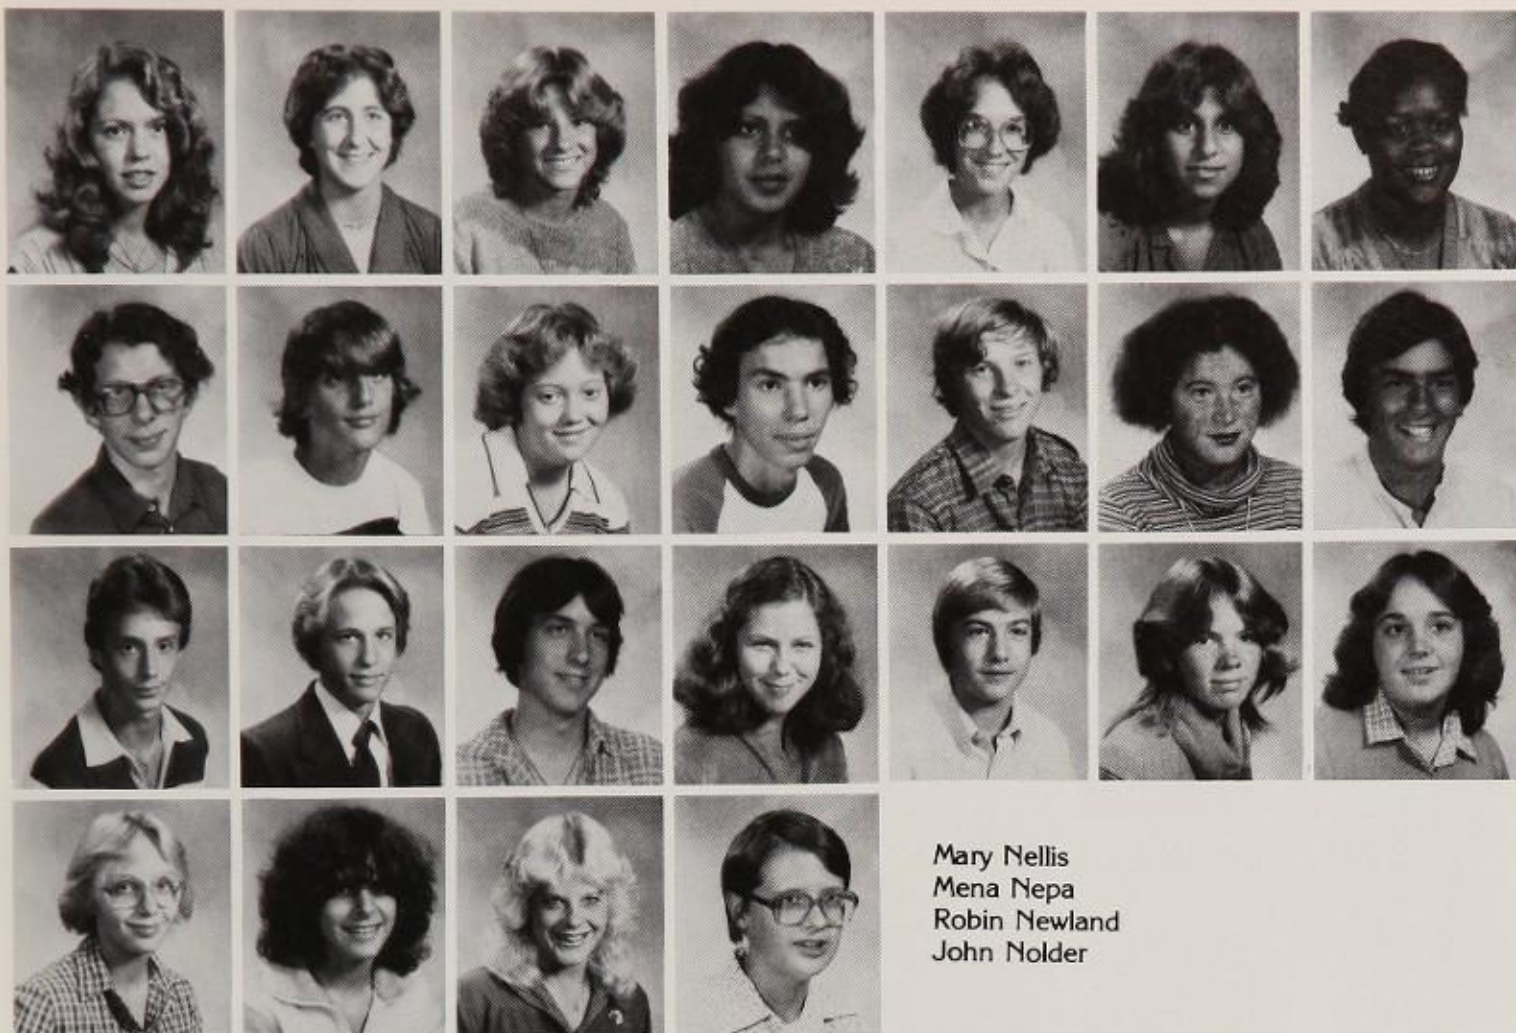

Displaying three of his trophies, chess champ Tim Smolinski looks forward to the next contest.

According to GHS's "Young Fischer", patience and concentration are the most important qualities of a good chess player. Tim added that it is also necessary to play as often as possible, which he does by competing against both his father and a computer.

On the distaff side of the sophomores with winning ways is fifteen-year old Pam Palmieri who loves gymnastics. She first became interested in the YMCA's program when she was twelve. Three years later, Pam has made a name for herself, as her hard work, including three hours of daily practice, has paid off. Last year she took 1st All-Around at the Christmas Invitational in

At the Y, Pam practices her routine on the balance beam.

Pam plans to continue with gymnastics and hopes to achieve even higher goals in the future.

Another GHS soph who uses the facilities of the local Y to practice his specialty is Garr Thompson. Garr first became interested in racquetball, one of the fastest growing sports in America, about a year and a half ago. He plays at the Geneva YMCA and at racquetball clubs in Rochester and Canandaigua. About once a month Garr attends tournaments, and he has won the Central New York Championships held in Syracuse, New York; the Coca-Cola Championships, also held in Syracuse, and the Coca-Cola Classic which this year was hosted by Buffalo.

become more interested in racquetball, partly because he'd like some competition in Geneva. He hopes to win a scholarship to a major university for playing the sport, and his ultimate ambition is to become a pro racquetball player.

Leading the Class of 1982 in its third year of high school are Todd Rizzler, president; Liz Payne, vice-president; Katie McGowan, secretary; and Mike Rice, treasurer. Todd and Liz gained experience in organizing activities for the class when they served in the same capacities as sophomores. Adviser is Miss Strawway.

Being a junior

Since the junior year is the Regents year with many students facing state exams in Comprehensive English, American Studies, math, science, and another elective subject, it is hard work, and a class like chemistry first period can ruin the day.

Although the work is really demanding, some aspects of the third year make it all worthwhile. First of all is the advantage of some of us being "bigger" and "badder" than the freshmen and sophomores. Then there is the joy of having a driver's license and maybe even a car. Also, there is the freedom that comes with the age; being able to go out just to hang around is a privilege.

Finally, in the spring comes the Junior-Senior Prom. This is the high point of the year. The preparation, the dance itself, and the memories of that night show how wonderful the year can be.

Juniors volunteer services

Although as a group juniors have the busiest classroom schedules, they still take time out of their few study halls to perform services that benefit Geneva High School as a whole.

Two junior girls work in the School Store on a regular basis during the fourth period on A, B, and C Days. Dory Pullano and Judy Liberatore have helped the PE Department sell boys and girls gym suits and the Student Council with its mug sale. Other items sold through the store include school supplies, yearbooks, candy, and gum. Proceeds from the sales help pay for the yearbook and the senior breakfast.

Others assisting in the store include Sandy Fink, Mary Sheehan, Bill McGuigan, Lisa Stolarczyk, and Kevin Best.

Third periods on A Day junior Tom Moos works in the Media Center. Tom fixes equipment, installing new parts after diagnosing the problems. His interest in the electronics field also prompted him to work setting up PA systems for various projects around the school.

Junior Spirit

During the homecoming parade some Juniors get into the spirit of things by riding their float.

While Anne Constable and Barb Mattick watch, Lisa Huie shows her spirit by illustrating to them the 'bunny hop'.

By working on the homecoming float Lisa Carter (below left) contributes to the class of '82's esprit de corps.

Seniors

Rosemary Cosentino, Shelly Patrick, Teresa Figueroa, Greg Grant, Steve Spina, Ed O'Brien, Heather Thompson, and Dale Laise descend the front stairway in the 'old' GHS.

Below is the unfinished version of the stairway connecting Student Street with the academic arts wing in the 'new' GHS.

This world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never shall the one we loved
From memory pass away.

We, the Class of 1981, fondly remember Barth Bennett. His voice and laughter were missed in the halls and classrooms of the old senior high and in the new Geneva High School, which he never had the chance to see. His memory is preserved here for all.

Sirpa — GHS's exchange student

Sirpa Johana Lehtonen, a foreign exchange student from Finland, is a very special senior at GHS this year. Sirpa became interested in the exchange program because both her mother and sister were exchange students. So she called the "right organizations" and, as she said, "Here I am!" Sirpa is staying with the Treadwells on Johnson Road. Donna Treadwell, a senior, has been Pen Pals with Sirpa.

Sirpa and her hostess, Donna Treadwell, will treasure memories of a senior year split between the old and the new buildings.

Sirpa likes the theater arts: drama, dancing, and singing. She had a role in the school play and musical and was also a member of the Varsity Singers for half the year. Modern dance, which she has taken since she was three, is her first love. She is taking some modern dance courses at William Smith College.

Sirpa said her school in Finland is very different and more formal than ours. Students and teachers do not joke around at all and are not as friendly. There are only nine years of required schooling without a high school as we know it. Most of the subjects Finnish students take are required; there are few electives. Two languages are required; Sirpa has taken four. In Finland they play little gym and have no school sports teams. The daily schedule is set up more like a college, with 15 minutes between classes. During this time, all the students must go outside, weather permitting.

Sirpa, who comes from a city about the same size as Syracuse, likes Geneva because it is small. She loves to meet people and our many school activities allow her to do so. Sirpa will be returning to her family of an older sister and younger brother, her mother and father, in August. One of the things she said she would be glad to get back to is the saunas. Everyone in Finland has one in their home and uses it at least once a week.

Sirpa has enjoyed her stay in the United States. She will find it hard to leave behind all of her new friends.

Lisa Balistreri

They've made their mark!

The senior class has among its members many winners, two of whom are Pattye Bagshaw and Kate O'Connor.

Pattye is an accomplished baton twirler, beginning when she was three years old. For ten years, she has competed in approximately ten competitions per year. Among the more important ones are the States and the National/World competitions. Through the years, she has won around 200 trophies.

At competitions Pattye not only performs a routine but also participates in a best appearance competition. She also must be interviewed by the judges.

Pattye's aunt, a former majorette, and her teacher's sister were inspirations to her. She gets her routines from her teacher in Ithaca and the money from her family. Pattye now teaches baton lessons and is working towards becoming a judge at competitions.

Looking Good

Kate (pictured left), who started taking lessons in third grade at Wendy Brown's School of Art, is already a recognized artist and has won scholarships because of her talent. One is from the GTA and one for a six weeks summer course at Fredonia. Though she works in pastels and in watercolors, Kate's favorite medium is oil. Ideas for her paintings come from people and places she has seen.

In ten competitions she has won eleven ribbons and three certificates. Of the school competitions, Kate considers the Sibley's Scholastic contest the most difficult. Of all her awards, Kate says that the one that gave her the biggest thrill was Best of Show which she won for a painting titled "Gordon" entered in the Palmyra Canal Days Show.

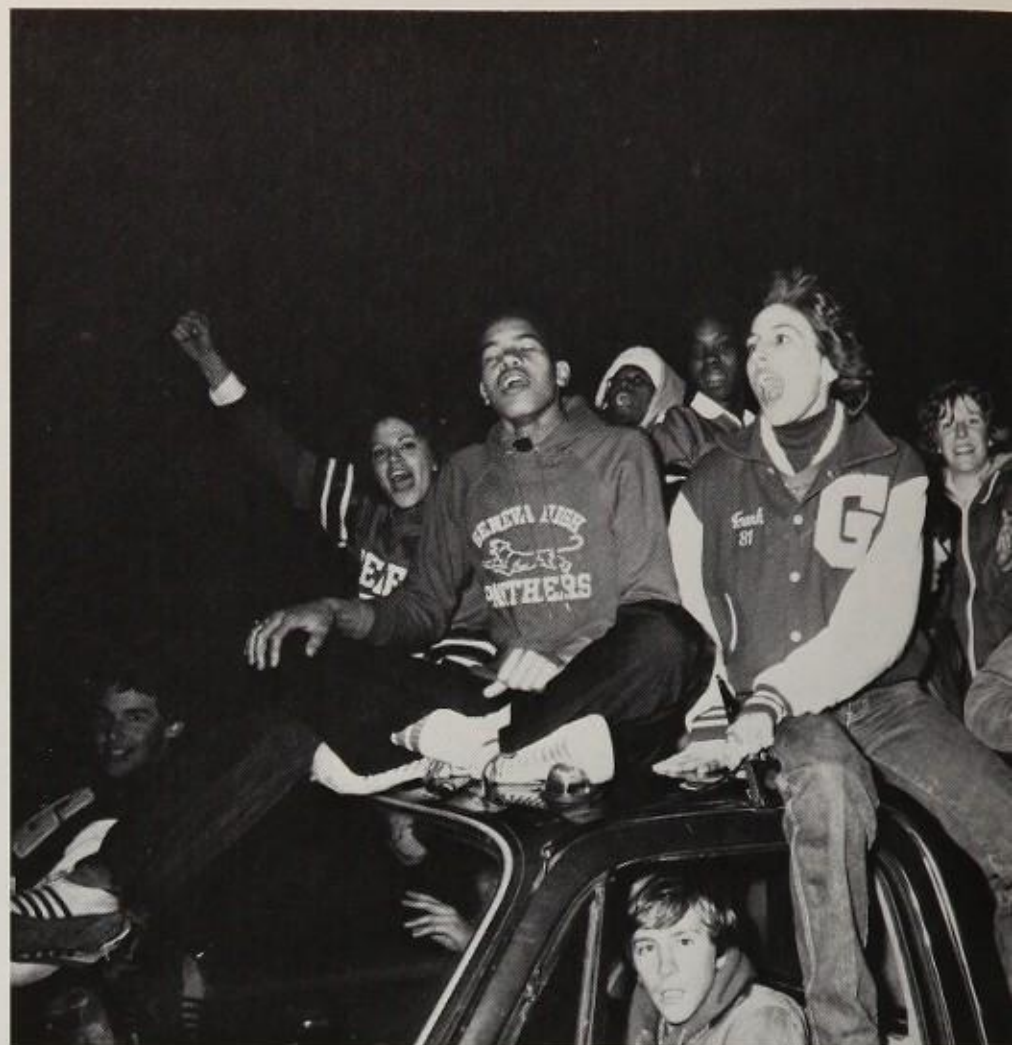

Mrs. Sullivan, GHS art teacher, has guided Kate in her competition and has been instrumental in directing her in her career goal: attending college, hopefully at RIT, and then working in the area of Commercial Art.

ROWDY

Leading the senior float in getting rowdy are Tyrone Henderson and Janet Rasmussen (right).

The entire senior cheering section gives it all they've got at a pep rally.

Carole Hansen (top left) mimics Uncle Sam as she points her finger and says "I want YOU to get rowdy!"

Trying to get their spirit across in words, Pauline Parmer and Mary Piergrosso (top right) enter into the spirit of Panther madness.

As stage manager for a school production, Gretchen Ahmsbrak (above) had to get psyched up.

The Best of Times

As they sit and shoot the breeze, Darlene Finizio and Paula Tyman enjoy themselves.

Lauren Mastrogiovanni, shown below having one of the possible times, gave the "gift of life" in the Student Council sponsored Blood Bank.

While walking the beat, Scott Smith, Dave Currie and Lauren Holly seem to be satisfied with things.

Cynde Ferrini and Shelly Graham are thinking that these really are "The Best of Times."

Making faces at the Instructor helped Stephany Felice (upper right) have the best of times in class.

Working on a class project out of class was a good time for senior Beth Witte (left).

Foodstuff

Food has many ingenious uses. For instance, Diane Rivera and "friend" (this page) use their popcorn boxes as shields from an October wind and plebe-to-be Andy Beaudry ponders the weaponry potential of an inverted can of Lucky Whip. On the facing page Marc Van Arsdale, a member of a relay team in Homecoming Week activities, searches for the marshmallow that Matt George and Jeff Jahn hid in a plate of cream. Also on page 135, Claudette Borsching uses her bubble gum to take a break in science.

On the lighter side

School is not all work and no play. For instance, a morning preview of a Student Council sponsored Free Fare concert and a visit from a friendly witch on Halloween helped GHS students to get through those first traumatic months of the year. And, since everyone is entitled to be somebody else for a short time, dressing up can be fun. Two junior clowns (page 139, top), goof around at a party, and Mary Hickey and Tammye Roberts (139, bottom) don funny outfits for sorority initiation.

The first spring on Carter Road

From April through June, the pace of life at GHS quickens on both the social and athletic as well as the academic scenes.

This year April had a special meaning for the school and community as on Sunday, April 5th, the new Geneva High School building was formally dedicated. Participating in the ceremony were the Reverends J. Richard Hart and John Quinn, Principal Scalise, Supt. Paul Kirsch, Karen Felice, president of the Class of 1981, Gerry Rizzieri, Student Council president, the Geneva High School Band and Varisty Singers. Board President Raymond Gage introduced representatives of Canon Design, who formally presented the building to the school district. The Hon. Gary A. Lee's address was a feature of the program.

During dedication ceremonies for the new school, student gov't head Rizzieri accepted a new flag for the school from Rep. Lee.

Later in the year underclassmen were in the limelight as the freshman class won a school banner for netting the highest amount of junk as they picked up 1,746 pounds of litter from the 25 acre school site as part of the city's Cleanup Week activities in May.

Also in May sophomore Steve Hall, a member of Young Achievers, was nominated for vice-president of administration on the state level of the Junior Achievement organization. Steve's advisors, Mrs. Michele Worden and Don Russo, both employees of the NYSEG, nominated Steve on the basis of his performance in the local group and as a result of a test given in the area of administration.

Spring also saw honors being heaped upon members of the graduating class. In March, valedictorian Marc VanArsdale earned the top score in GHS for The Mathematical Association of America National Contest. The next month saw Heather Tennes, Nina Zappler, Lauren Holly, Melanie D'Alesandro, and Donna Treadwell's induction into the National Honor Society.

The Class of 1981's investment of twelve years in the classroom paid off for several of the hard-working seniors as scholarship awards and other honors were announced. Winner of the C.T. Lynch Scholarship was Ed Povero, who will be attending Clarkson. This award, based on academic performance and need, goes to a senior boy from DeSales or GHS. Heather Thompson, who will attend Houghton College, was honored by the Geneva College Club Award. Heather qualified on the basis of an essay she wrote and on her academic and extra-curricular standings as a member of the upper 20% of her class.

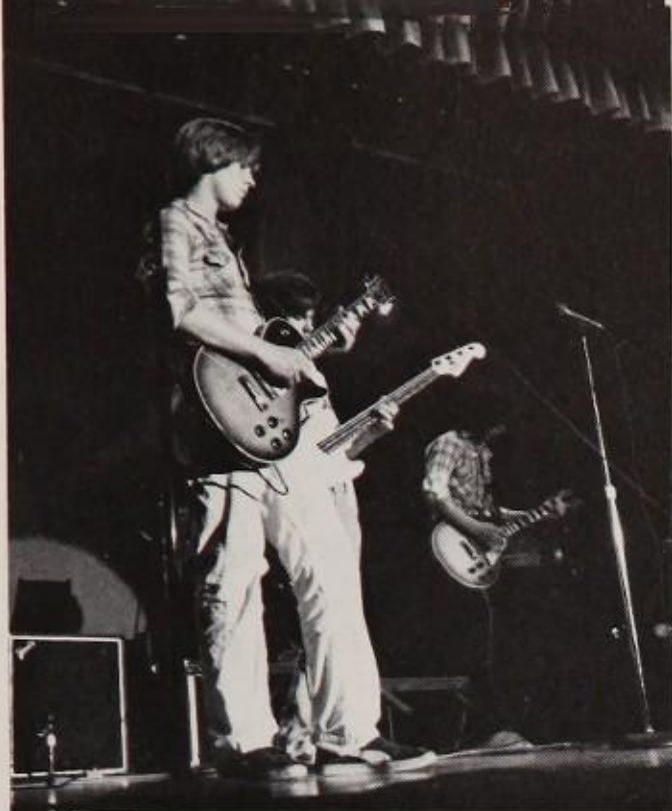

Another Geneva senior was the first recipient of the $1,000 Dean Milliman Memorial Scholarship at Alfred State Ag and Tech College. Greg McDonald, who has been accepted at Alfred, earned the award which was established for the first time this year by Monroe Tractor in Monroe County.

Other outstanding seniors honored included Lori Miller — the French IV and the David A. DeVito Memorial Awards; Lorraine Aten — Sibley's 1981 Scholastic Art Exhibit Certificate, an A rating at the Solo Festival, and Who's Who In Music; Brenda Roelofs — Who's Who in Music, the Latin III and DAR Good Citizens Award. Yearbook editor Barb Campbell won the Truck Town Award as an outstanding business student, the GTA Scholarship Award, and the LeLand H. Dilts Leadership Award, given by the Elks. To Evelyn Lopez went the Seneca Auto Club Award and the Carol Vogt Award to a senior planning to pursue higher education in home economics.

Kathryn O'Connor earned certificates for competing in the Elmira College Art Competition and the Sibley's 1981 Exhibit as well as a special leadership honor given by the Elks Lodge.

Also, Sharon Daniels — Six Plus One Men's Social Club Award to a student demonstrating the spirit of concern and respect for others and the Geneva Center of Concern Award; John DiDuro — Who's Who in Music, and the Geneva Rotary Club Annual Honor Award for service above self; Michele De Matties — the Kiwanis Club Jack Houston Memorial Scholarship to a student excelling in achievement and responsible citizenship and the Nester Hose Company Award; Beth Wood — an award for drama and the William E. Hill Memorial Prize for exhibiting the qualities of charity, justice, brotherly love and fidelity; Paul Alexander — the Jesse Bahn Memorial for his responsibility and dependability, the Molly Lydenburg Scholarship, and the Geneva Center of Concern Award; Tyrone Henderson — the C. Willard Rice Speech Prize, a drama award, and the VFW Award for outstanding citizenship qualities; Matthew George — the Gary Michaels Citizenship Award, a drama award, Who's Who in Music, an A rating at the Solo Festival, the Marching Band Award, and the Fred Vogt Award; Deborah Harris — the Best Bedside Nurse Award and the second highest average in Nurse Assistant Program at FLOS, as well as the VICA Club Trophy for outstanding dedication at State Competition.

Talent Night

"Fly by Night", presented by the rock group Tempest (top) featured guitarists Lee Fancett and Bill Long.

Guys and Dolls

Frank Loesser's Guys and Dolls, the first dramatic production in the new Geneva High School, was a great success. Presented on a stage that was ready only days before opening night, the musical, based on a Damon Runyon story, was a vehicle well-suited to showcase the talents of the student body. The plot revolves around a gambler's attempt to secure a spot for his floating crap game. Naturally, romance is in the air, and ultimately the fate of the high rollers in the story rests in the hands of two determined women.

This year director Mollie Steele's efforts were bolstered by a host of other faculty and community members. Senior English teacher Doug Duncan not only helped design the sets but also supervised the lighting of the play. Mike Zakour, father of sophomore Mary Zakour who created the role of Adelaide, helped with the sets also. Other GHS faculty who lent their talents to the musical, included Mrs. Bailey, choreography; Mr. Fabrizio, music; Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Johnson, set painting; Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Henderson, costumes and publicity. Mr. Schaefer, Mr. Mulvey, and Mr. Messur also contributed their expertise.

As the gamblers sing "Luck Be a Lady," Uly Thompson, who portrayed Joey Baltimore, shows the crowd a little "fancy Dancin'."

Students instrumental in helping with the production included Lisa Ruck, Student Director/Prompter; Lisa Balistreri, Wardrobe Mistress; Bonnie Brown, Liesl Zappler, and Gretchen Ahrnsbrak, Lighting; Nina Zappler, stage Manager; Laurie Pane, Edna Johnson, Sue Russell, and Carol Brandt, costumes. The poster design was created by Lauren Mastrogiovanni; the program cover by Sue Pool. John Onorato and Jeff Maio helped print the programs.

Benny Southstreet and Nicely-Nicely Johnson, sinfully portrayed by Ty Henderson and Greg Barnard, captivated the audience when they danced to the theme song "Guys and Dolls."

After a night on the town in Havana, Sky Masterson (John DiDuro) helps Sarah (Katie McGowan) home.

Lt. Brannigan (Dan Liberatore) checks to see that the boys are staying out of trouble.

As the guys finally finish their crap game in a sewer, the audience wonders if their souls can be saved.

Lacrosse

For the third consecutive year, the Geneva High Varsity Lacrosse Team finished with a perfect 8-0 league record and won their fourth straight league title. Their 15-5 overall record was highlighted by a come-from-behind 9-8 win over Section III power Bishop Ludden and a first place finish in the East-Syracuse tournament in which the Panthers defeated Deer Park, a team from Long Island, and Jamesville-Dewitt.

The Panthers outscored their opponents 188-103. They were led by tri-captains senior Marc VanArsdale, with 40 goals and 47 assists; senior Pat Fabrizio who posted 33 goals; and junior Dan Ahmsbrak with 14 goals and 33 assists.

To say the least, the defense was "awesome." Nine times they held their opponents under five goals, and they never gave up more than nine. The "D" was anchored by one of the best goalies in the area, senior John DiDuro, who saved 74% of the shots he faced. Helping him in shutting down the opposition were seniors Garry Rizzieri, Chris Bruno and Ed Povero, along with Junior Mike Rice.

The midfield provided a combination of high scorers, ground ball hawks, and defensive specialists. This group included seniors John Snyder, Looie Hall, Andy Beaudry, Dave Currie, and Dave Harvey. Right with those veterans were juniors Bill Kerr, Matt Rogers, and Todd Rizzieri.

Post-season honors included All-American recognition for VanArsdale, the fourth All-American in Geneva High history. Van was joined by six other Panthers as First Team All-League players. Along with him on attack was Pat Fabrizio; on midfield, Matt Rogers and Todd Rizzieri; on defense

Gerry Rizzieri and Ed Povero; and in goal, John DiDuro. Named to the Second Team All-League were Dan Ahmsbrak on attack, John Snyder and Looie Hall in midfield, and Chris Bruno on defense. Post season honors were also given to Coach Natti, who was named Coach of the Year, the third Geneva coach in the 1980-81 year to receive that recognition.

The JV Lacrosse team also had a successful season by finishing 14-2. The year saw wins over perennial powers Corning East and Ithaca, and a first time ever victory over Irondequoit. In that contest, ten seconds before the half, Andy Vogt scored from the restraining line to bring Geneva within one goal. The rest was history as the junior laxmen edged their opponent 9-8, beating Irondequoit for the first time in the seventeen years the two teams have competed.

After finding the open man, Bill Kerr, #24, whips a pass across field.

"Poke, poke, poke" — Ed Povero, #39, works on an Irondequoit attackman.

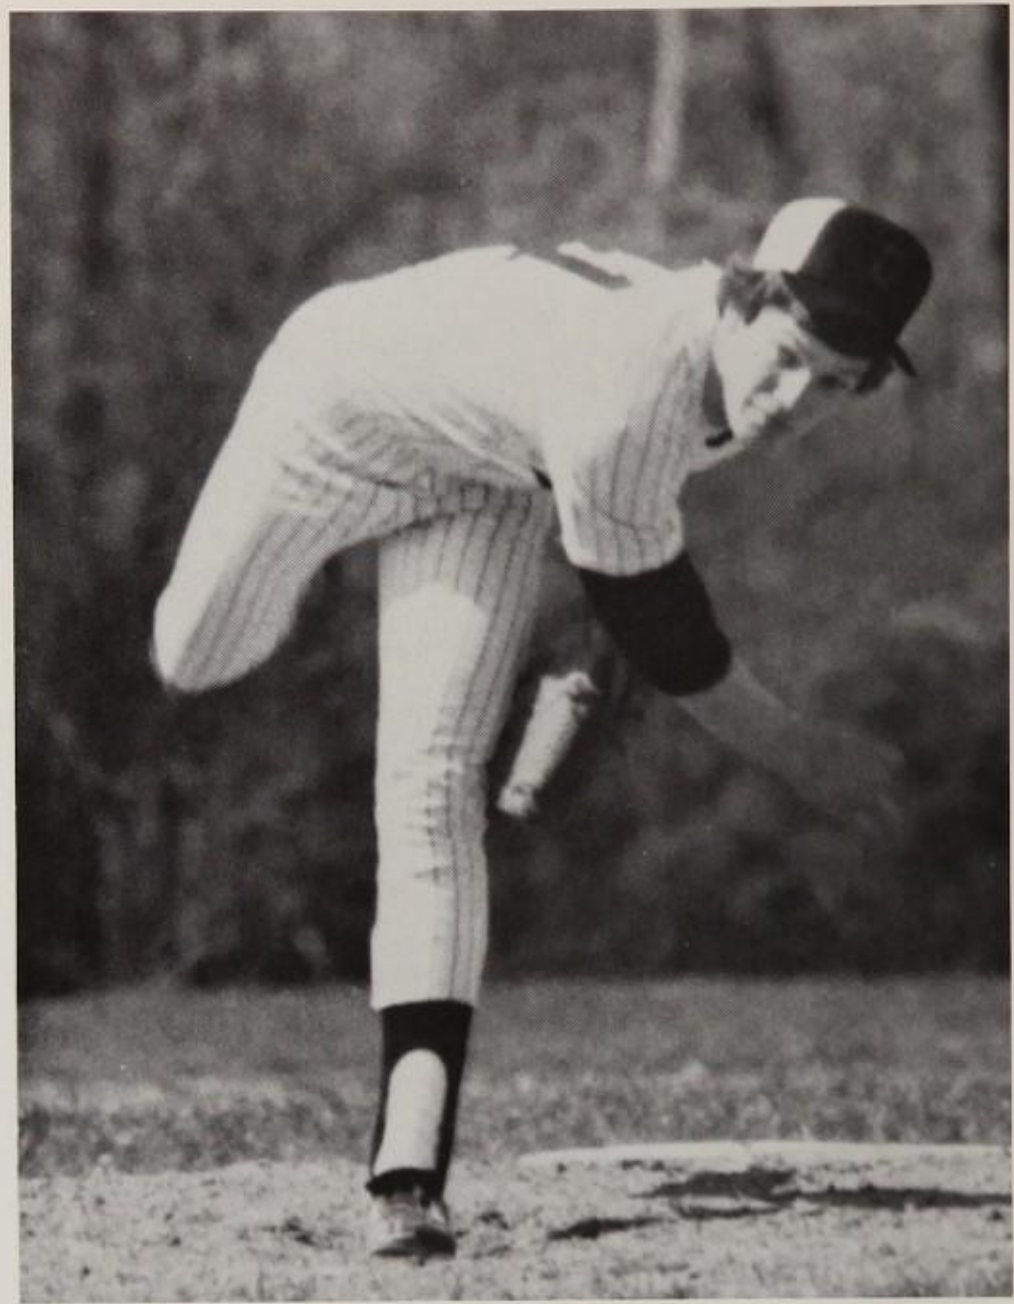

As Mr. Natti despairs, Dan Ahrnsbrak (below) rifles in a shot.

Attempting to outsmart the batter, Geneva's ace, Todd Fitzgerald (top) fires a "deuce" over the plate.

Softball

Posting an undefeated season record, GHS led the F/L League in 1981. Returning to the links next year will be standouts Mike Avery, Scott Baroody, and Kellie Stenzel, all consistent golfers.

Track and Field

Geneva High's Boys Track Team ended the 1981 season with a 6-1 league record, good enough for second place. Overall the team was 11-1.

Many fine individual performances were turned in throughout the year. School records were set by junior co-captains Bill Riker in the pole vault, 13'8", and Jim Alexander in the 400 meter hurdles. Alexander was best in the league in the 110 high hurdles, while Riker also took the championship in his event. Along with senior Vaughn Nelson, juniors Alexander, Al Sutton and Jim Rector posted another school record in the 400 meter relay team; that team also won the league championship.

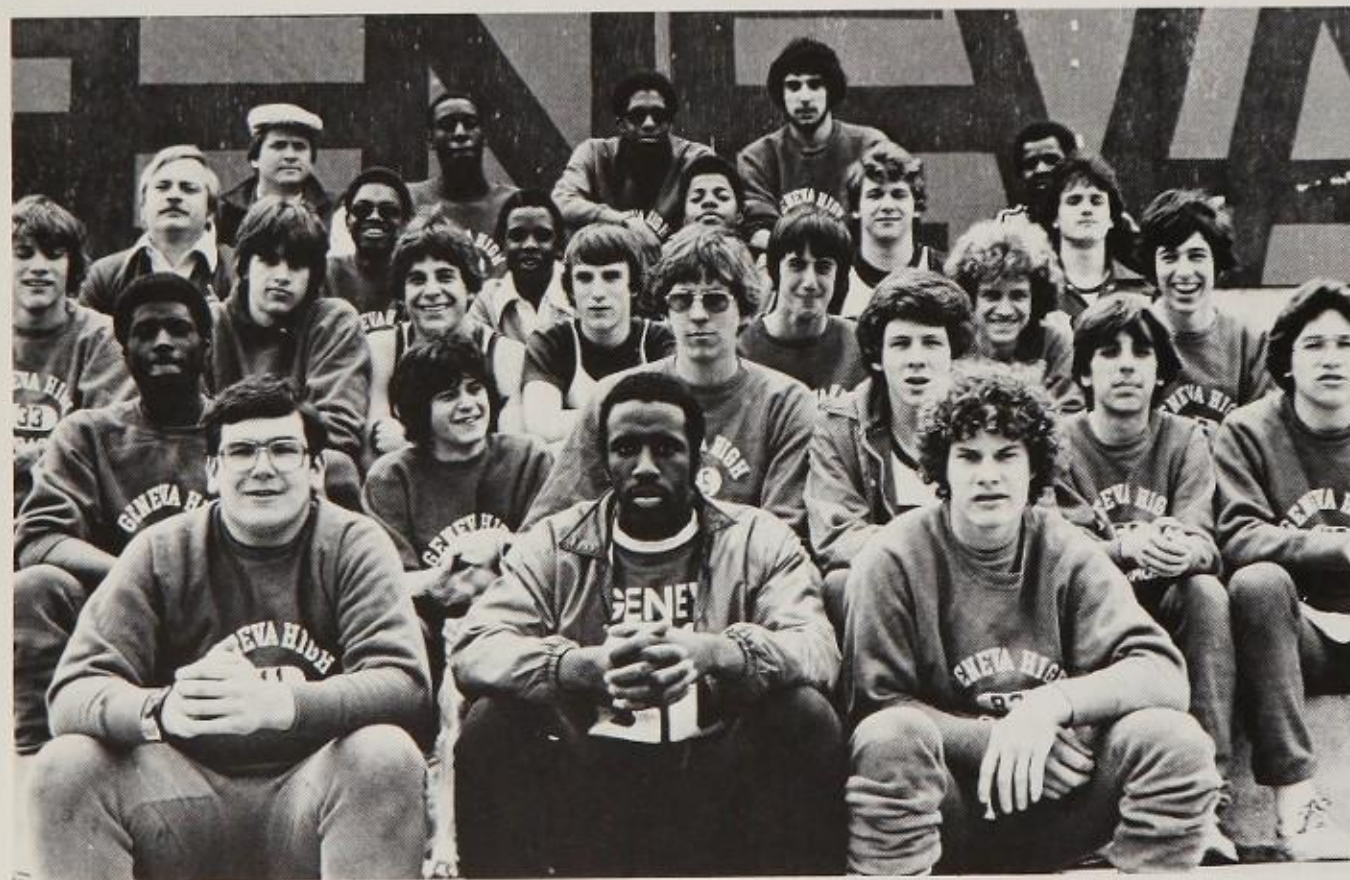

Coach Canale's men topped off their outstanding season by winning the Section V Class A team title. Taking firsts in sectionals were junior Chip Arthur in the pole vault; the 400 relay team also prevailed over their competition. Senior Dan Collins, discus; and the 1600 meter relay team of Rector, Mark Switzer, Nelson, and Pat Sutton placed second in the Section in their events. Coming in third were Sutton in the 100 and 200 meter dashes; Rector in the 400 meter dash; sophomore Hank Pearson in the triple jump; and Mike Riker in the pole vault.

Chip Arthur also advanced to the state meet, where he placed fifth with a fine performance.

Although graduating seniors Collins, Pat Sutton, Matt George, Bill McGuigan, and Dave Luzzi will be missed in 1982, Coaches Canale and Kubacki have twenty-five returning lettermen to help the Panthers continue with their winning ways.

Dave Currie

Both Sharon Daniels and Edna Johnson won the sectionals in their events, the jumps and the 400 meter respectively. Daniels placed sixth in the States in the high jump.

When the lights go down . . .

Geneva High School students watched the lights go down on May 9, 1981, at the annual Junior-Senior Prom. The gym was decorated in blue, yellow, and silver — a scheme which contributed to the mood set by the theme song. The band, "Spring Fever", provided the right touch throughout the evening.

As the time pushed towards midnight, the crowd's anticipation grew as they waited for the names of this year's royalty. Junior attendants for the Prince were Jeff Greco, Jim Natelli, and Carl Brownell, while attendants for the Princess were Margaret Gage, Kris Hansen, and Claire Johnston. Senior attendants included Andy Beaudry, Bob Avery, and Todd Fitzgerald for the King while the Queen's ladies were Janet Rasmussen, Tracy Gilbert, and Lauren Mastrogiovanni. Junior Prince and Princess were Todd Rizzieri and Kathy Spina, who "ruled" for the rest of the night with King Tyrone Henderson and Queen Karen Felice.

On that Saturday night, the new GHS "hosted" its first prom. The gym lobby (upper left) was the setting for refreshments while faculty members (upper right) oversaw balloting for the court. Couples like Pam Spedding and Alan Malj (above) enjoyed the music, but as midnight neared, the crowd gathered to await the names of the student royalty.

Posing for posterity was the first official act of Prince Rizzieri, King Henderson, Queen Felice, and Princess Spina (above). Taking time out to rest their dates and their feet were Marty Thibault, Rich McHale, and Bill Fuller. As he joined the crowd, Jeff Greco (right), did not suspect that a few hours later he would be named a part of the court.

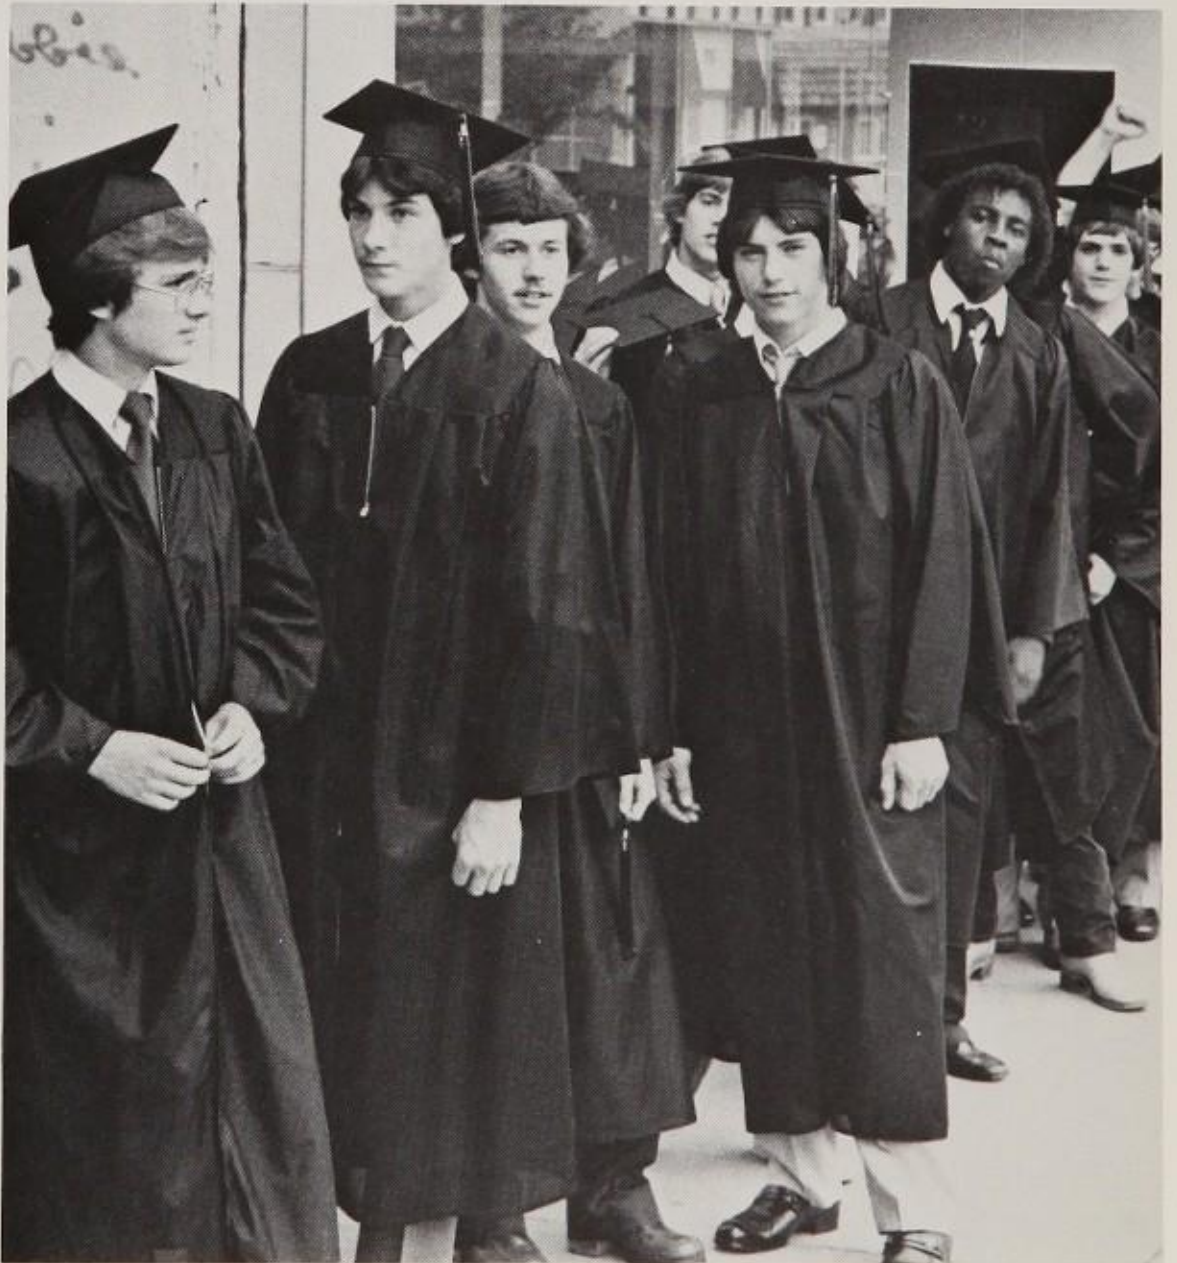

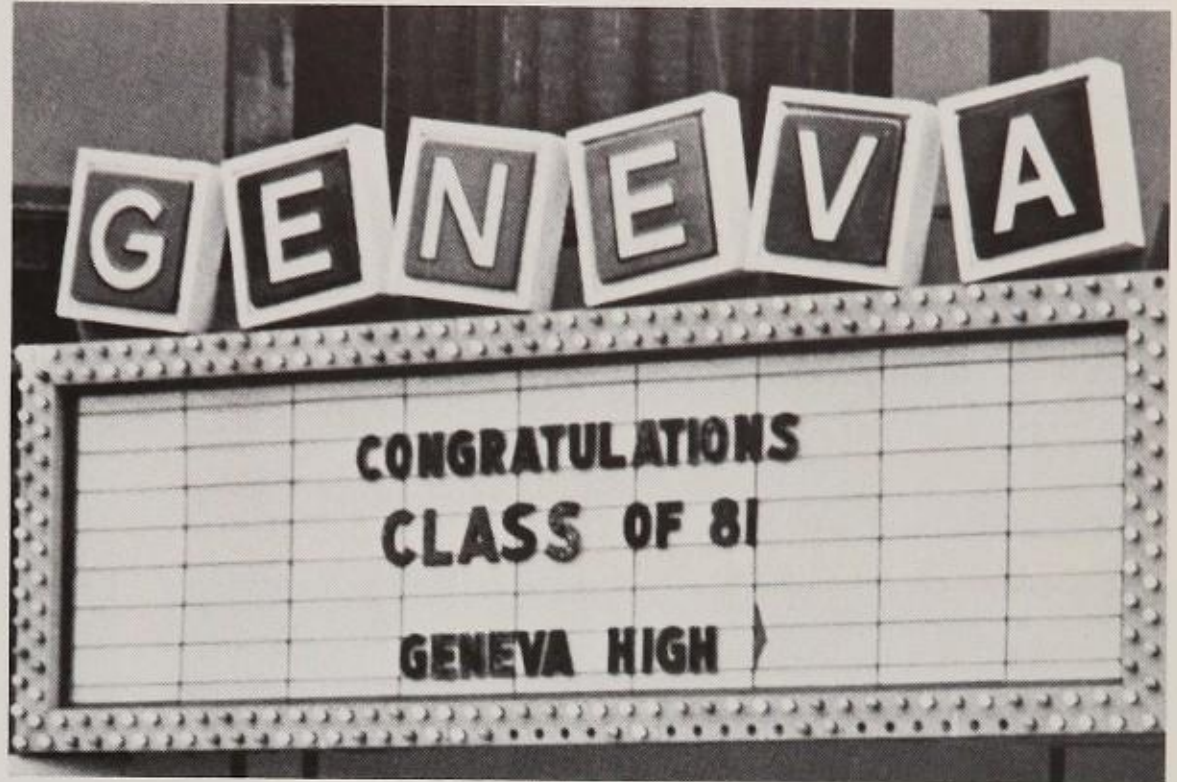

Two major June banquets serve as social events which herald the long-awaited graduation exercises. Open to student sportsmen and women and guests, the Block "G" Banquet honors GHS athletes. Winning the highest awards in 1981 were a trio of seniors: Ed Povero, the Richard Post Memorial Award; Gerry Rizzieri, the Edward "Tiny" Barood Memorial Award; and Brenda Roelofs, the top female athlete citation. Others who earned special awards included Sharon Daniels (dedication), Michele DeMatties (most versatile girl); Karen Felice (cheerleading); Pat Sutton and Carole Hansen (Student Council sportsmanship awards). Also honored was Mrs. Ruth Whiting (inset) who retired in June of 1981 after years of dedicated teaching in the fields of Physical and Health Education. Mrs. Whiting had also served as chief advisor of the Class of 1981. Pictured top are all of the Geneva High athletes who were mentioned during the 1981 Block "G" Banquet.

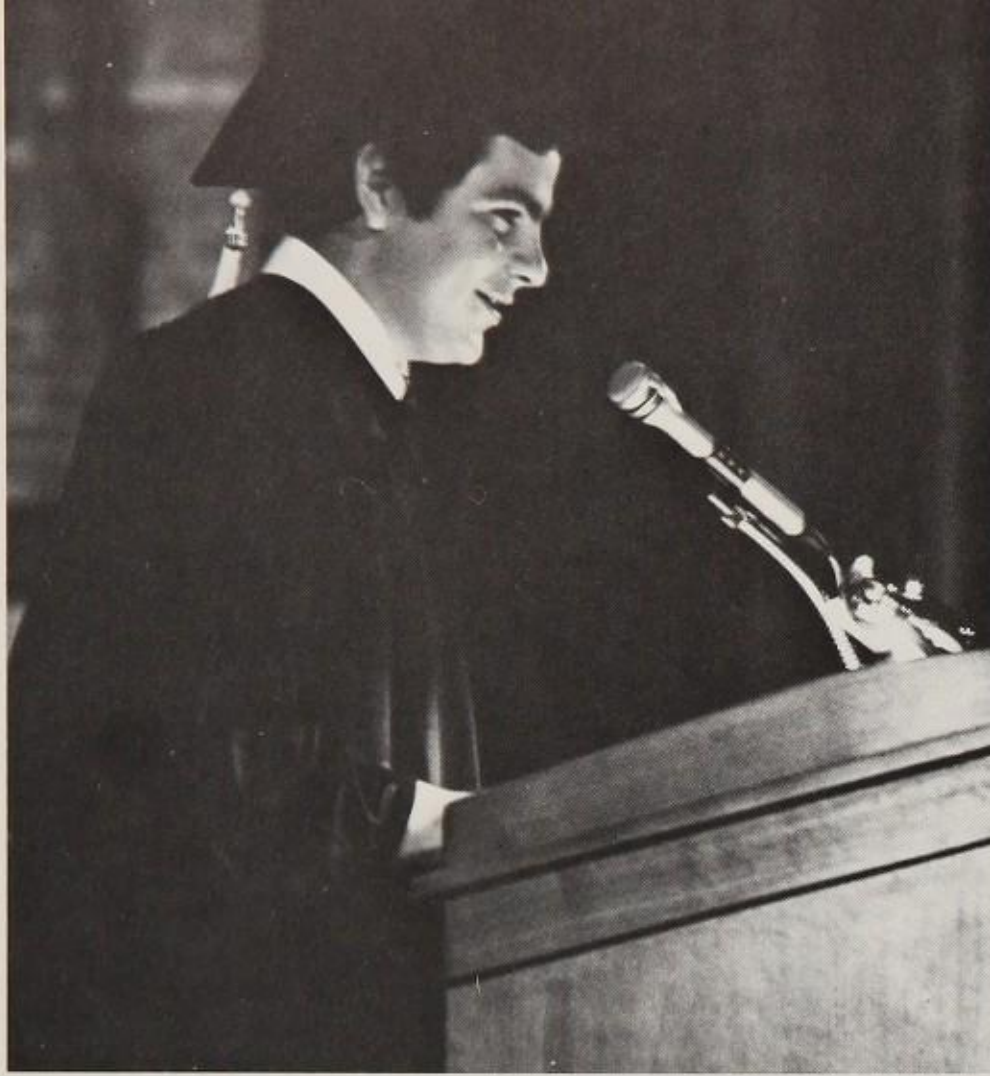

On June 4, 1981, Club 86 was the site of the annual Senior Banquet. Scenes from the event are pictured right and on the facing page. A highlight of the evening was the distribution of the 1981 Seneca Saga.

June Banquets

Winner of the Barbara Brind Memorial Award and valedictorian of the Class of 1981, Marc VanArsdale (left) addressed the 1200 people assembled for commencement exercises on June 19th.

Congratulations were due the 222 young men and women who received their diplomas that Friday evening. Gerry Rizzieri (above) received the best wishes of freshman class president Matt DiDuro while Pat Fabrizio (right) was the center of attention for his family.
